Libby Reynolds
Will Not Face
Slaying Trial

State Nolle Prosses Case Against Former Broadway Star

EVIDENCE TOO WEAK

if Warranted
In Future

Winston-Salem, N.C.—(P)—Murder charges which have been hanging over the head of Libby Holman Reynolds, one-time toast of Broadway, were dropped today by the state of North Carolina.

Solicitor Carlisle Higgins went before Judge A. M. Stack in Forsyth county superior court and asked that a nolle prosses, subject to the approval of the court, be entered in the case charging Libby and Ab Walker of Winston-Salem, with slaying young Smith Reynolds, her millionaire husband, last July. Higgins based his request on the grounds of insufficient evidence.

Judge Stack concurred and at 12:20 p. m. declared the motion be formal record.

Neither Mrs. Reynolds nor Walker was in the courtroom but both were represented by attorneys.

In ordering the motion recorded, Judge Stack directed that the defendants be discharged and their bonds released.

Questions Evident
Stack said he was not familiar with the evidence except as he had read it in the newspapers, but if that was all, or nearly all the state had, he seriously doubted if it would have been possible to secure a conviction.

The judge added that if the case had been brought to trial before him, he would have asked to be excused because of his friendship with W. N. Reynolds, wealthy horseman and uncle of the dead youth.

Higgins read a prepared statement saying that in asking for a nolle prosses he is leaving the way clear for prosecution should any evidence which may be discovered in the future warrant a reopening of the case.

He can bring the two defendants to trial merely by appearing before a judge and asking that the case be reopened on the grounds of newly discovered evidence.

Both defense attorneys and members of the wealthy Reynolds family, which inaugurated the movement to drop the charges against Libby and Walker, expressed approval of the course taken by Higgins.

Attorneys Satisfied
Benet Polikoff, speaking for Mrs. Reynolds, said a nolle prosses is satisfactory to the defense and this statement was concurred in by W. N. Reynolds, and his attorneys.

W. M. Hendren, representing the Reynolds family, said the family approved of the state's action.

Polikoff said he would immediately get in touch with Mrs. Reynolds, who has been in seclusion since she surrendered to authorities some months ago and was released on bail. He said he might possibly have a statement from the former Broadway favorite later in the day.

S. Porter Graves, another member of defense counsel, said the state's course in dropping the charges precluded a statement in court, but that the defense may issue one later. He said he was convinced young Reynolds killed himself, either accidentally or intentionally.

Another Death Results
From Riots at Geneva

Geneva—(P)—Another death today brought the total number slain in last Wednesday's political rioting to 13.

Meanwhile from Bern came reports by the chief inspector of the Swiss army on the disorders. The inspector said all his evidence indicated the crowd of manifestants gathered deliberately to attack troops which had been called to avert disorders.

The inspector said the troops fired only when physically threatened by the crowd.

Prison Term Bars
Him From Office

F. H. Shoemaker, above, Farmer-Laborite, formerly of New London, Wis., apparently has been elected to congress from Minnesota, but may never take his seat. He served a term in Leavenworth penitentiary for violation of U. S. Postal regulations. The Minnesota constitution provides that one convicted of a crime against the government may not hold public office, and Shoemaker has never received the pardon to restore his civil rights. One of the candidates he defeated may be certified as congressman in Shoemaker's stead.

Wisconsin Income
Tax Receipts to Decline Sharply

Less Than Half Customary Yield Is Expected for Current Year

Madison—(P)—When Governor-elect A. G. Schmedeman undertakes hearings within the next few weeks for preparation of his budget message to the legislature, one of the first things he will discover officially is that the total income tax estimates for next year is less than $8,000,000 as compared with $18,000,000 in normal times.

The state's share of the income tax will be somewhere around $3,000,000, which is less than half the customary receipts in prosperous years. In 1932 the state got $4,800,000. Local governments also will suffer from the dwindling revenues.

There is some doubt also whether the surtaxes on incomes to meet the state's share of teachers' retirement payments will be adequate. If not the difference will have to be made up out of the general fund.

The 1933 estimates of the income tax are based upon the assumption that the method for changing over to a single year assessment of incomes as provided by the 1931 law repealing the three-year average will stand.

Under this method the income will be taxed either upon the weighted average of 1930 and 1931 or upon the single year of 1932, whichever is higher.

Challenge Validity
In a case involving the Ussinger estate at Milwaukee an attack upon the validity of this change-over system has been made and it is contended that 1932 income alone can be taxed. This matter is still in litigation.

If taxation is limited to 1932 incomes only, it is generally conceded that the already shrunken estimates for 1933 will shrink much further.

The depression-blow on the income tax may be felt most keenly when the 1933 legislature undertakes the problem of providing unemployment relief, as income surtaxes again have been mentioned as the means of obtaining funds for apportionment to the localities.

Without some broadening of the base of the income tax struggle it would appear that a surtax nearly equal to the normal tax would be necessary to provide as much money as the special session of the 1931 legislature made available, which was a little less than $6,000,000.

An effort already has been made among Milwaukee Democrats, members of the dominant party in the assembly to line the delegation against the dividends tax. In computing the 1932 surtaxes the dividends of Wisconsin corporations, for relief purposes only were not exempt. Under the normal law such dividends, as the statutes now stand, are exempt.

Threat Letter
Is Delivered
To Architect

Purported Plot to Kidnap
Famous Architect
Is Revealed

HOME UNDER GUARD

Students Maintain Armed
Vigil at Spring
Green Dwelling

Madison—(P)—A plot to kidnap Frank Lloyd Wright, internationally famous architect, was disclosed here today with the information that Madison police are searching for the author of a threatening letter delivered to Mr. Wright at his home near Spring Green on Nov. 5.

Seven or eight students at the new school which Mr. Wright has established in the vicinity of his home, Taliesin, were said to have been maintaining an armed guard at that place ever since the note was delivered.

Mr. Wright is now in New York. He will return to Wisconsin this weekend. A Madison friend of the architect said that he will be accompanied by a personal bodyguard upon his return and that a close watch will be kept at Taliesin.

The kidnap note was mailed in an envelope, postmarked from Madison on Nov. 4.

It demanded that a sum of money be deposited at an appointed place and declared that the architect would be abducted and held for ransom if he failed to comply. It also threatened Mr. Wright with harm if he notified the police. The instructions in the note were ignored.

The letter was hand-written and purported to come from a "Committee of Vigilantes." It was so signed.

Personal Remarks
The author obviously was acquainted with details of Mr. Wright's life as the note contained slurring remarks about the colorful career of the architect.

Police believe that the sender was someone who either knew Mr. Wright through personal contact or had read extensively from his biographies.

Defectives had been working quietly on the case for 10 days seeking to trace the note back to the author through the handwriting. The exact text of the letter was not revealed.

A friend of the architect said when the letter was first received "we were very much concerned about it." Although the architect's associates are beginning to attach less importance to the incident, the friend said, every precaution will be taken to guard Mr. Wright against harm upon his return.

While Mr. Wright has been out of the city the students of his new school have been keeping a close watch about Taliesin. They assumed that the author of the note, not knowing that Mr. Wright was absent, might appear at the homestead to carry out the threat.

Troops Clash in Honduras Revolt

Several Hundred Reported
Dead in Fight Between Rebels, Federals

Tegucigalpa, Honduras—(P)—A sudden revolution hardly 24 hours old, joined federal and "liberal" forces in battle today and claimed the lives of several hundred men.

The insurgent liberals, who were defeated in the presidential election two weeks ago, started hostilities by capturing Nacaome, key city of southern Honduras, and San Pedro in the north.

Reports to the capital said federal forces were counter-attacking, and so fierce was the fighting that hundreds were dead. There was no outbreak in the capital, but the situation was reliably reported as "threatening."

Officials said the revolt started at San Pedro when the liberals walked in and seized control. Then it spread to the south. The federal counter-attack was reported supported by the nationalist political group.

Federal troops were reported hastening toward Comayagua in anticipation of an attack, and fighting was reported at Puerto Cortes.

The nationalist conservative candidate, Gen. Tiburcio Carias Andino, won the presidency in the recent election, defeating Angel Zúñiga Huet, the liberal.

General Carias' inauguration has not yet taken place and President Mejia Colindres remains at the head of the government. He is a political ally of General Carias.

Ancient Assyrians
Also Thought World
Was Going to Dogs

Chicago—(P)—Listen to this, you who think the world has gone to pot! "Times are certainly bad. Children no longer obey their parents. Women are frivolous and given to gaudy dress. Many say the end of the world is at hand."

The quotation comes not from a modern.

It was recited yesterday by Dr. Charles W. Kerr, moderator of the Presbyterian Church of the United States, who said it was quoted from an ancient Assyrian manuscript.

And the Babylonians, some 7,000 years ago, agreed with the Assyrians.

Dr. Kerr, speaking at the Presbyterian Union, attributed the following quotation to them: "Alas, times are not what they were."

The thesis the Tulsa minister was seeking to develop, he said, was that it's just an old custom to talk about the younger generation.

Farmers' Union Chief Thinks Democratic
Regime Will Provide Relief

Omaha, Neb.—(P)—Delegates attending the annual convention of the National Farmers' union today told John A. Simpson of Oklahoma City, national president, that the price of farm products "is the cause of every business failure, including the closing of thousands of banks."

He expressed belief that "the rising sun of a new day is here," for agriculture and that a Democratic-controlled congress will soon enact legislation designed to aid the farmer.

Remonitization of silver, government refinancing of responsible farmers, federal regulation of crop marketing and permanent discarding of the manufacturers' general sales tax plan were proposed by the Oklahoman in his farm relief program.

"The farmers of this nation won a wonderful victory in the recent election," Simpson said. "The platform of the successful party pledges to see that farmers are refinanced at lower rates of interest and long payments on the principal. It pledges to do everything possible under the constitution to see that farmers get cost of production."

TOKIO DISTRICT HIT

Death List Expected to Grow as Survey Is Completed in Disaster

Tokio—(P)—More than 100 persons were reported dead or missing today in the wake of a 12-hour typhoon that scourged land and sea in the Tokio district with torrential rains and a 100-mile gale.

The fishing villages of Fukushima prefecture reported 13 motorboats with more than 100 fishermen aboard as missing. Three bodies have already been washed ashore.

The freighter Unkai Maru, earlier reported in distress, went aground on Oshima island at the mouth of Tokio bay. Fishermen rescued nine members of the crew, but the 22 remaining aboard were feared lost.

The navy sent destroyers to Oshima to give any assistance possible. The home office early tonight announced total casualties ashore were 26 dead, 25 seriously injured and 26 missing. This did not include the loss of life at sea.

The total number of houses destroyed including those turned to rubble, 1,637, and those seriously damaged 4,413, according to the home office figures.

The typhoon zone included the prefectures of Tokio, Chiba, Kanagawa, Shizuoka and Fukushima. The first four named bearing the brunt of the damage.

Kanagawa prefecture, including the cities of Yokohama and Yokosuka, reported 15 deaths, and in Tokio proper there were three, landslides claiming most of the victims.

It was believed probable the death list would increase as losses among the fishing fleets and small coastal shipping vessels became known.

The damage was inestimable today, but it was known to come to several million yen in shore areas alone. The typhoon zone included the prefectures of Tokio, Chiba, Kanagawa, Shizuoka and Fukushima, especially the first four named.

More than 2,000 houses were destroyed and 2,000 badly damaged in this area according to police tabulations. In Tokio alone 40,000 houses were partially and temporarily

Germantown, Wis.—(P)—The Bank of Germantown was held up and robbed of $1,200 today by two armed men who carried the cashier and a bond salesman a short distance outside the village limits in their car.

B. W. Bellin, cashier, was talking with R. Cardinal, Milwaukee, when two men came in and commanded them to lie down on the floor. One stood guard while the other gathered up money from the cage and vault. Both robbers wore blue or green corduroy sheepskin lined coats.

Bellin and Cardinal were ordered into a four-door sedan bearing a Wisconsin license and driven outside the village before they were freed. The robbers drove toward Milwaukee.

65,000 Deer Hunters
In Woods of Michigan

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.—(P)—Conservation officials estimated that the woods of the upper peninsula contained 65,000 deer hunters and more deer than the state has ever seen opened at daylight today.

Visiting hunters are fewer than usual, however, five hundred fewer cars crossed the state ferries at Mackinac than for the four peak days of the 1931 season.

Snow was general over the peninsula and hunting conditions were said to be ideal.

Guard of Over 12,000 for Prince in North Ireland

Precautions Taken Against Outbreaks of Hostile Groups

Belfast, Northern Ireland—(P)—More than 12,000 men will guard the prince of Wales when he arrives here tomorrow to dedicate the new parliament buildings at Stormont.

Four thousand of them will be armed, and all of them are a part of the elaborate precautions to be taken for the safety of the heir to the British throne during his three-day stay in the capital.

Only a few weeks ago Belfast was the scene of violent street fighting, and although this rioting was not connected with the prince's visit, some groups in northern Ireland have announced their hostility to his presence.

The extraordinary guard for the prince will include 2,000 troops, 2,000 Ulster policemen, and 8,000 Orangemen who have volunteered to assist the police along the prince's route during public appearances. One hundred officers and men of the Royal Iniskilling Fusiliers will form the guard of honor on the steps of parliament.

So complete have been the precautionary steps that the whereabouts of the heir to the throne at any given moment while in Belfast will be official secrets. The time of his arrival may not be announced more than a few hours in advance.

The prince is expected to leave London about 11:15 p. m. tonight aboard a regular train, transferring to a special train somewhere enroute to Liverpool. There he will board a ship reserved for his use.

The troops and Ulster police have been training for weeks in preparation for the royal visit, and will provide a shoulder-to-shoulder guard along the five-mile route to the parliament building. Plain clothes detectives will mingle with the crowd.

Whippet tanks will bring up the rear of each procession in the parade, and a police car filled with armed detectives will lead.

Extra police are being held in reserve in various barracks to handle any major disturbance, although authorities have announced formally they expect no trouble.

Economy is to be the keynote of the ceremonies, and the prince's advice to those in charge to spend "not a penny more than necessary" has been faithfully followed.

Nationalistic members of the parliament led by Joseph Devlin, promise to be conspicuous by their absence, in keeping with repeated protests that the prince's visit is calculated to perpetuate the partition of Ireland.

Investigate Crash of Trains Near Shawano

Green Bay—(P)—Chicago and Northwestern railroad officials here today are investigating a head-on collision between train No. 405, combination freight and passenger, Oconto to Clintonville, and No. 382 way-freight from Eland to Green Bay, which occurred on the outskirts of Shawano Friday afternoon. No one was injured and damage was slight. There were no passengers in No. 405's coach at the time.

Pending completion of the investigation, officials here declined to comment on the cause of the crash. Belief was unofficially stated, however, that an error on the part of the crew of No. 405 in reading the train register at Southern Junction where the lines met, was responsible.

The canvassing board is expected to start the recount tomorrow.

Railroad Group
In Attack Upon
Waterways Pact

Spokesman Says Investments Would be Endangered by Action

Washington—(P)—Representatives of railroad interests today re-emphasized before a senate subcommittee opposition to the St. Lawrence Waterways treaty between the United States and Canada.

Fred N. Oliver, general counsel of the Security Owners association, composed of owners of railroad securities, said the project would further endanger investments in American railroads "already threatened by adverse conditions."

A foreign relations sub-committee, headed by Senator Borah (R., Idaho), began hearings on the St. Lawrence pact yesterday.

Oliver testified after Alfred P. Thom, general counsel of the Railway Executives association, who presented the objections of the railroads themselves against the party.

Following arguments used by Thom, Oliver said "the added facilities proposed are wholly unnecessary and even wasteful from a public point of view and no public good will be derived therefrom."

Outlining financial difficulties of the railroad, Oliver said: "The problem now facing the American people, is whether or not the existing abundance of transportation facilities will be able profitably to survive rather than new facilities should be created."

"It seems to us that there is no justification whatsoever for vast expenditures by the government for the purpose of developing competition for our present facilities, thereby leading aid to their more complete destruction."

Oliver said the government was now aiding three competing types of transportation, the railroads, the trucks and the inland waterways.

Sales Tax Urged
By Rep. Britten

Immediate Tax on Beer
Also Favored by Illinois Congressman

Washington—(P)—Representative Britten, (R., Ill.) today in a formal statement urges passage of a manufacturers' sales tax and the levying of a beer tax at the coming session of congress.

"The most important legislation confronting the coming session of congress," Britten said, "will be steps toward the relief of the taxpayer himself and this can most quickly be done by the immediate passage of a manufacturers' sales tax which would bring not less than $400,000,000 into the federal treasury through a uniform but modest levy on everything but foodstuffs and the cheapest kind of wearing apparel."

"The tremendous wet vote throughout the country would justify the modification of the Volstead law and a revenue tax on beer before Christmas which would immediately place in circulation $200,000,000 for rehabilitation of the breweries of the country, would stimulate employment generally and would undoubtedly promote one of the happiest holiday seasons in the history of the country."

Including revenue for the federal treasury approximately $50,000,000 a month from the very outset."

Britten has been an advocate of beer consistently and is a militant leader in the house wet bloc.

Belgium Joins Britain
And France in Submitting Views

TEXT IS WITHHELD

No Sign of Changed Attitude Among Congressional Chiefs

(By the Associated Press)
Official silence has settled in world capitals pending the "significant meeting soon to come between President Hoover and President-elect Roosevelt on European petitions looking toward prolongation of the moratorium and war debt revision."

Belgium today joined Great Britain and France in communicating its views to this country. The text was withheld temporarily at Washington—possibly pending the arrival of the president from the west tomorrow. He on the speeding train and Mr. Roosevelt in Albany prepared for their meeting, expected early next week.

Members of congress back at their Washington desks continued private discussions of the situation, there being no indications of change from the attitude of opposition to revision that was expressed by resolution last year.

State department officials kept their views to themselves, the position being taken that Mr. Hoover alone can state the administration position as of the present.

EUROPE SILENT

Washington—(P)—European countries which have spoken to the United States on war debt revision to three today, with receipt by the state department of a Belgian note.

The text was not divulged immediately at the state department. Officials indicated it might be similar in tone to the French and British notes which urged an extension of the moratorium, and suggested a review of the entire "object looking to further slashes in the billions due America."

Meaningful formulation of plans to meet the situation awaited the return of President Hoover to Washington and his conference with President-elect Roosevelt.

The chief executive was expected from the west tomorrow. The time for his meeting with the New York governor is indefinite, but it is expected to take place soon.

Belgium's total debt to the United States arranged under funding agreements was $400,880,000. Payments totaling $52,191,273 have been made.

The payment due to the United States from Belgium on Dec. 15 is $2,165,000. This sum is interest and payment is not postponable under existing debt agreements.

Closely watching developments, legislators already were voicing differing views. But from them protruded the possibility that congress may prefer a default of any or all of the $123,000,000 due from European nations Dec. 15, to a further moratorium pending a debt conference.

This would leave the obligations on the books at their present figures as was the apparent intention of congress when, in approving the one-year moratorium, it voted overwhelmingly against further reduction or cancellation.

Up To Europe
Nor have possibilities of a default been lost sight of by the administration, whose leaders felt such an occurrence would affect world economic conditions adversely. But they came to believe also that further aid for our European debtors depended primarily on a self-help program for settling currency, armament, tariff and other controversies in a fashion so militant as to impress American public thought.

At Lausanne, in July, the debtor nations accepted a huge reduction in German reparation payments in a settlement whose fulfillment depended upon revision of debts owed the United States. Since, the American people have elected a president

French List Proposals to End Warfare

Would Abandon Strict Neutrality and Assure Concerted Action

Geneva—(P)—The French disarmament plan, launched today in its final form, would line up all nations including the United States under a pledge to abandon absolute neutrality in the event of war.

This agreement is reached at the outset of the proposal in the form of a short four-pronged chapter one enunciating principles to be established for peace.

Thereafter follow four more chapters each linked in with the whole, and all representing the French idea for disarmament parallel with security. The text of the plan runs 4,000 words.

The Hoover plan to cut all armaments by nearly one-third was especially recognized as a factor of the French plan, and the German demand for equality of armaments was given recognition within certain limits.

Here is the general agreement suggested:

(A) Any war undertaken in breach of the Paris pact (the Kellogg-Briand pact) is a matter of interest to all the powers and shall be regarded as a breach of the obligations assumed towards each of them.

(B) In the event of a breach or threat of breach of the Paris pact, the said powers shall concert together as promptly as possible with a view to appealing to public opinion and agreeing upon the steps to be taken.

(C) In application of the pact of Paris outlawing war, any breach of that pact shall involve the prohibition of direct or indirect economic or financial relations with the aggressor country. The powers shall undertake to adopt the necessary measures to make that prohibition immediately effective.

(D) The said powers declare their determination not to recognize any de facto situation brought about in consequence of the violation of an international undertaking.

The plan then would call for application of the league of nations covenant, especially Article 16 applying to pooling of arms.

Chapter 3 provides special regional agreements for mutual assistance against any aggressor in the European sphere. This involves reductions in effectives and materials of war with a special allotment of troops and arms for the use of the league of nations in enforcement of peace. Other nations would have this obligation under the European agreement.

The French government hopes that this European system will appear, to the powers who will not belong to it, to be of sufficiently great importance from the point of view of the consolidation of peace for them to render its application possible by agreeing, for their part, to give full effect to the guarantees arising out of the pact by which they are already bound: the pact of Paris or the covenant of the league of nations. Without this acceptance the plan would be impracticable.

U. S. Is Signatory

(The United States is a signatory of the pact of Paris, or Kellogg-Briand peace pact, and of it Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson said recently: "Consultation between the signatories of the pact when faced with the threat of its violation becomes inevitable.")

The third chapter also defined an act of aggression thus: "... when a territory under the authority of one of the signatory powers is attacked or invaded by foreign forces. An aggression as thus defined cannot be taken to include certain cases, such as the existence of an agreement to the contrary, the case of self-defense, (I. E. N. the repelling of armed forces which have entered by violence the territory of the state which is defending itself) and action undertaken in execution of Article 16 of the covenant of the league of nations or specially authorized for any reason by the council or assembly of the league."

The memorandum accompanying the plan has this to say for the German demand for equality of armaments:

"While the French government has objected to the conditions in which the claim for equality of rights has been put forward, while it does not recognize the force of the legal arguments on which this claim is based, and while it persists in the belief that any solution involving rearmament would be unacceptable as being contrary to the very purpose of the conference, it has never denied that the problem was among the political problems brought up before the conference."

Now Paying Price

Depression Marked by Glaring Paradoxes, Says The Rev. Ingram Bill

"This depression period has been marked by the most glaring paradoxes," declared the Rev. Ingram Bill in the first of a series of Bible addresses at the Baptist church Sunday evening.

"With the fruit of the uncultured acres rotting on the ground, with elevators bursting with grain, millions starve," he continued. "We may as well weep as they witness helpless senators and congressmen attempting to grope their way out of the jungle in which an acquisitive society is now flourishing. It is the price a selfish world is paying for being selfish, and the politician who thinks in terms of selfish policies will scarcely prove to be the Moses to lead a dazed and bewildered people out of an economic tragedy."

"The first step in permanent economic recovery is spiritual. The principles of Jesus translated into the business and industrial organizations of the country will make for a more equitable distribution of property. To think of economic and national and international politics in terms of Christian discipline is basic in material as well as moral prosperity."

Tonight Mr. Bill will speak on "The Message of the Prophets, discussing some of the great social reformers and political leaders of Israel."

Initial steps were taken last night in the preparation of the dramatic service in which 100 young people will participate Sunday evening.

Egg Prices Move Upward on Market

Heavy Shortage May Keep Values at High Levels, Dealers Say

Egg prices have been mounting steadily during the past month and are now seven cents a dozen higher than they were in October, Appleton dealers say. Compared with last year, prices on both fresh and storage eggs are about the same.

At the present time fresh eggs are retailing at 34 cents a dozen, and the wholesale price has mounted to 30 cents a dozen. Storage eggs are now two cents a dozen, retailing at 26 cents a dozen, and being sold wholesale at 22 cents.

The shortage of eggs in storage in the United States, compared to last year, is approximately 3,000,000 cases, dealers say. It appears as if eggs will hold for higher prices throughout December, because the shortage is greater than any year since 1916.

Fight Just Begun, Milo Reno States

Association Leader Says Movement Thus Far Largely Educational

Omaha, Neb.—(P)—The Farmers Holiday association has just begun to fight.

That is the pronouncement of Milo Reno of Des Moines, Iowa, national president of the association.

"The time has come for effective direct action," he said in an interview. "So far, the holiday movement has been largely educational in nature. From now on we will urge our organizations to use every means at their disposal to boost the price of farm products, until it at least equals the cost of production."

Reno, who is here attending the convention of the Farmers' Educational and Cooperative Union of America, was asked if he believed the holiday association "aid anything in the election that resulted in Iowa going Democratic."

"Did we do anything in the election?" he exploded. "Man alive, why, farm organizations had been passing beautiful resolutions on the plight of the farmer and condemning Wall-st bankers for years and years. Most Iowa farmers would read them, shake their heads sadly, agree with them and then forget about them." It required more than resolutions on paper to rouse the moral conscience of Iowa.

"If Roosevelt makes a misstep, we will fight him just as hard as we fought Hoover. This holiday movement just took time out during the election. We're back in the fight now with both feet, and we will come down harder than ever."

Favor Addition Of 3 Workers in Relief Program

Recommendation to be Submitted to Council Tomorrow Night

Subject to the approval of Miss Edith Foster of the Wisconsin Industrial commission, the committee on public relief will recommend the addition of two investigators and an office worker to the public relief department at the meeting of the common council Wednesday night. These additions and a redistribution of work in the department, it is expected, will give Appleton a claim to a share of the Reconstruction Finance corporation appropriation for outdoor relief.

As a substitution for federal highway aid, the state is receiving monies from the Reconstruction Finance corporation which are to be distributed to municipalities to assist in carrying the outdoor-relief load. The money from the state to the municipality is an outright gift but cannot be taken out of the jurisdiction of the municipality. "To lay claim to any of the money a city must have exhausted its own resources. The amount specified is one-half of the money distributed in outdoor relief. Estimating Appleton's 1932 expenditure in the public relief department at approximately $70,000 this would mean a return of $35,000 to this city."

Changes Needed

Before Appleton can secure aid, however, several changes in the administration of relief are necessary. The plan proposed by the committee at its meeting Monday night was to make Joseph E. Schweitzer, commissioner, overseer of the department, and to delegate E. A. W. Pankow to take care of all employment matters, which would involve freeing the public relief list of all persons who are earning a living wage, and keeping it free from impostors. In addition to Miss Maude Priest, two more investigators and an extra office girl would be engaged.

Instead of having a steady line of dependents calling at the relief office for requisitions, the three investigators would make out orders at the homes on their semi-monthly visits to the homes. Each investigator would have on his list 150 families, on whom he would call once every two weeks, writing out orders, checking on general financial conditions, morals, etc. All food orders would be made out according to the ration schedule recommended by the Industrial commission. At the end of the day the investigators would bring these orders back to the department office, where they would be checked by the overseer and sent down to the commissary department to be filled. The next day the dependent could call for his supplies, which are to last him two weeks.

Additions to the department are to be made on the basis of civil service examinations.

The committee also discussed the problem of rents, and asked the doctors to submit in writing their proposition for caring for the indigent sick.

Fish Destruction By Fishing Gear Object of Probe

Investigation Conducted in Lake Michigan and Green Bay

(Post-Crescent Washington Bureau)

Washington—The investigation of the destruction of immature fish in Lakes Michigan and Huron and in Green Bay through use of fishing gear was the major field work of the Bureau of Fisheries on interior lakes during the fiscal year 1932, which ended June 30, 1932. Commissioner Henry J. O'Malley of the Bureau announced in his annual report made Monday.

Deep crib nets, recently introduced into these waters, are apparently very destructive to immature fish. The primary objective of the Lake Michigan work was a study of chub nets to determine their selectivity with regard to chubs and their destructiveness to immature lake trout. O'Malley says.

Wisconsin and Michigan authorities actively participated in this work, contributing funds for the operation of the Fisheries Bureau vessel, Fulmar, stationed at Charlevoix, Mich., and assigned to duty with the Great Lakes scientific staff. Experimental fishing stations were occupied weekly throughout the season at numerous points around the entire Lake Michigan, according to the annual report.

Find Nourishing Oil

The completion of a joint investigation by the Bureau of Fisheries and the Bureau of Chemistry and Soils of the nutritive value of burbot-liver oils reveals that the marine product is considerably more nourishing than cod-liver oil, thus promoting a burbot-liver oil industry on the Great Lakes and thus opening up a new market for a fish little used but available in larger quantities than now caught, O'Malley announces.

Commercially produced burbot-liver oils were found to be from four to ten times as potent in vitamin A, and from three to four times as potent in vitamin D as medicinal cod-liver oil.

During the last fiscal year, detailed studies of the rate of growth of various food and game fishes in the Wisconsin Lakes were continued and work is now progressing in the analysis and correlation of data collected by the Bureau of Fisheries and the Wisconsin Biological and Natural History Survey.

Work on the construction of the new fish hatchery at Lake Mills was started just before the end of the year. Commissioner O'Malley reports.

The salvage of fishes, stranded in the overflowed areas of the upper Mississippi river, principally in the Upper Mississippi, Wild Life and Fish Refuge, was conducted on a much restricted basis during 1932, principally because water conditions rendered salvage work impracticable or unnecessary to a considerable degree, according to the Bureau. A total of 51,611,367 fish were rescued in 1932, representing less than a third of those salvaged in 1931.

Final statistics for the calendar year 1930 are now available and reveal a total catch of fresh-water mussel shells in the Mississippi river and tributaries of 59,490,000 pounds valued at $1,092,156, an increase of 9 per cent in quantity but decrease of 16 per cent in value when compared with 1929. The fisheries of Lake Poygan and Keshkuk decreased from 1929 totals.

The lake fisheries of the United States and Canada, the Great Lakes and Namakan, Lake of the Woods and Rainy Lake, produced in 1930 121,532,335 pounds of fish and shellfish, of which the United States accounted for 94,947,642 pounds, valued at $6,050,267.

Chicago—(P)—The accusation that the government is subsidizing roads with the ultimate effect of ruining the motor bus industry before the Shannon congressional committee today as the committee continued its investigation of irrational activities in business.

Ivan Bowen, Minneapolis, representing several bus companies testified yesterday that loans Reconstruction Finance corporation to the railroads constituted a subsidy and said the corporation had loaned to the bus companies "Railroads," he said, "are financed and encouraged by government to bring about the ruin of the motor coach industry."

Bowen said the government, as an obligation to a legal business activity, withdraw both its financial support from the fair battle.

Relief Group Opens Drive to Raise $25,000

Workers Given Final In- structions at Meeting In Y. M. C. A.

The Appleton Welfare and Relief council's organization of commanders, captains and workers this morning took the field in the campaign to raise $25,000 or more for relief work in Appleton during the coming year. The group started out determined that when the first reports are submitted at a meeting Thursday night at the Y. M. C. A., the goal will be so near that there will be no question about its being reached by the end of the week.

The field staff, which started its operations today, met last night at the Y. M. C. A. to hear short talks by Mayor John W. Goodland, Jr., Judge Fred W. Heinemann, chairman of the council and chairman of the drive, and Gustave Keller, Sr., chairman of the council finance committee.

Face Trying Winter

Mayor Goodland explained that the city is facing the most trying winter in its history. Already, he said, the city is caring for more than 450 families, exclusive of those being given aid by the relief council. The cost of caring for these unfortunate families is tremendous, he pointed out, and the aid which the city has received from the relief council in this huge task of caring for the needy was highly praised by the mayor. He commended the efficiency of the group, both from the standpoint of low-cost relief, and from the manner in which the relief was extended.

"There are many cases of families which face hunger and suffering from cold because they are too proud to come to the city and seek aid," the mayor said. "Many of these people own their own homes, but they have long since used up their savings, as they lost their jobs. These people have been good citizens and it is up to the city to see that they do not suffer."

The relief and welfare council meets this need. Its work is done quietly and well and with an understanding that can come only through a system such as the council uses. I want to say that the $25,000 you propose to raise will not come anywhere near meeting the situation we face this winter."

The mayor explained that there was no need for donors to worry about an increased emergency income tax this year because there was no possibility of such a tax. He said this statement was made because the state was receiving federal funds for relief work and it would not be necessary to inaugurate an additional tax.

Outlines Drive Plans

Mr. Keller explained the manner in which the drive is to be conducted this year, explaining the purpose of the group collection system, which is being tried. He also discussed the plan under which the relief and welfare council was organized, stressing the cooperation existing between the council and the city department of public relief. He said there was no chance of duplication of effort and relief and yet the highest possible efficiency was resulting from the present system.

The solicitation cards, which are to be used in seeking funds this year, were explained by Mr. Keller. The speaker said that indications are the drive is certain to go over the top. He said that Appleton has taken care of its unfortunate citizens in the past and that it will continue to do so. The city has escaped trouble, which has arisen in many other cities among the unemployed, because of its policy toward them.

"We have enjoyed peace and harmony and we can continue to do so," Mr. Keller said. "We can teach a greater love and pride for our city by putting this drive over the top and demonstrating that Appleton will not fail its helpless citizens. Every man and woman in the city with a job should give, and give generously."

MUSICAL PROGRAM

Appleton Kiwanis club will be entertained with a musical program at their weekly luncheon at Conway hotel, Wednesday noon. The program will be presented under the direction of Jay Williams, high school orchestra leader.

Through deep snow drifts that blanketed Wolf Creek Pass, 10,800 feet above sea level in Colorado's Rockies, a great V-type snow plow doggedly pushed its way. A whirling rotary plow spouted clouds of snow, clearing the roadway. And soon, despite temperatures daily below zero, workers of Liberty Truck & Parts Co., of Denver, had opened the 15-mile road.

"We used Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil and Conoco Gasoline exclusively in our Cletrac Tractors with wonderful results," wrote a Liberty official. "We had no difficulty starting our motors in the mornings."

Hoover Busy Over Foreign Debts Issue

Wants to Avoid Action Until After Conference With Roosevelt

On Board Presidential Special enroute to Washington—President Hoover today approached the White House, prepared, in his own words, to deal with the foreign debt question but "loath to proceed with recommendations to be congress" until holding a now assured conference with President-elect Roosevelt.

A telegram from the New York governor, according to the chief executive's request for a White House parley in which to seek a continuing policy on war debts, armaments and world economic affairs, was received by Mr. Hoover board his train last night.

The message left unsettled the one of the conference and stated that although the president-elect was willing to discuss these questions, responsibility for their settlement must remain with the president until March 4.

Presidential aides told newspapermen Mr. Hoover had no immediate public comment to make upon the Roosevelt message but described him as pleased the New York governor had accepted his invitation.

As his train headed through Missouri, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio, the president gave thought almost entirely to foreign matters and hopes to discuss with his successor. A majority of payments are due one month from today unless there is a moratorium extension or default is made.

Five European countries either have failed to pay or notified the United States they will be unable to do so on Dec. 15, while Great Britain, France and Belgium have asked for suspensions and a review of the debt field.

The president has expressed himself as opposed to cancellation in any form but has held that the United States should be receptive to proposals from debtors unable to pay that would enlarge American markets abroad.

In his telegram to Roosevelt, seeking a conference, he said that if the requested negotiations are undertaken, they cannot be completed during the present administration, and pointed out that any action taken must be limited by the resolution of congress.

He told the New York governor so that if there is to be any change in the attitude of congress it will be greatly affected by the views of those members who recognize you as their leader and who will properly desire your counsel and advice.

Spends Day at Desk In preparation for the parley, the chief executive spent almost his entire day yesterday at an improvised desk in the private car of his train; it rolled across New Mexico, Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas.

Aides said that although he was working upon debt matters he had either received nor dispatched communications of importance related to the problem since sending a telegram to Roosevelt.

During yesterday he made several air platform appearances, but aside from explaining to wayside crowds his voice was still weak on many campaign speeches in the past month.

Last night at Pratt, Kas., where a warm weather experienced by presidential party during the day had changed to a temperature

Badger Corn Crop Larger This Year

Estimate of 81,585,000 Bushels 40 Per Cent Greater Than in 1931

Madison —(P)— Wisconsin's corn crop this year is now estimated at 81,585,000 bushels, or 40 per cent larger than that of 1931 and the second largest crop in the history of the state, Walter Ebling, statistician for the U. S. and Wisconsin departments of agriculture, reported today.

In his November crop report, Mr. Ebling announced that the production of corn, oats, barley, rye, wheat, flax, apples, cranberries and sugar beets in Wisconsin is greater this year than last year. Smaller crops than those of last year are estimated for potatoes, tobacco, beans, buckwheat and hay.

The apple crop is now estimated at 1,914,000 bushels, nearly five per cent more than the good crop harvested a year ago. Cranberries are making a production of 75,000 barrels, which is two-thirds larger crop than last year.

The potato crop, for years the leading cash crop in Wisconsin, is nine per cent smaller than that of last year. Lack of rain in central Wisconsin during the latter part of the growing season was the principal reason for the decline, Mr. Ebling said. The crop is now estimated at 22,695,000 bushels compared with 24,924,000 bushels a year ago.

The tobacco crop is the smallest in several years, being only about three-fourths as large as that of 1931. The estimated production is 35,000,000 pounds as compared with 47,520,000 pounds last year. Reduced acreage brought about the decrease in production. Buckwheat production is estimated at 104,000 bushels, which is a little more than five per cent under last year's crop.

of 30 degrees, the chief executive was introduced by Representative Clifford Hope of Kansas, in a voice that carried to the far edges of the railroad station crowd.

"I am afraid the congressman's voice came through the campaign better than mine did," Mr. Hoover said.

State Department Offers Prizes in Feeding Program

Ten Awards to be Made to Builders of Stations For Wild Game

By R. J. Meyer

Convinced that we are facing a long, hard winter, the state conservation department is launching the most intensive winter feeding program for game birds in the history of the state. This program is to include each interested organization, no matter what its scope, and every interested individual, no matter what his or her business or profession. The goal is 20,000 winter feeding stations for upland game birds. This is an increase of 400 per cent from the 4,000 stations maintained last year.

The easiest way to work is to make a game of the work. The conservation department, therefore, is making a game of the tremendous job it has set itself and the winners will, as all winners should, get a larger part of the glory, not only in better hunting next fall, but in receiving as prizes game birds for stocking purposes.

To stimulate interest and encourage participation the department is offering ten prizes, ranging in value from $1,000 for first to $100 for eighth, ninth and tenth prizes. These prizes consist of game birds to be given the winners for release in their own territory.

First prize—250 mutant or black pheasants, of the kind with which the Outagamie Fish and Game Protective association has already planned to experiment next year and which, at present, represent a market value of $4 each; second prize, 150 mutant pheasants; and third prize, 100 mutant pheasants.

Others are as follows: fourth prize, 75 mutant pheasants; fifth, 60 Mongolian pheasants or 75 Mallard ducks; sixth, 50 Mongolian pheasants or 60 Mallard ducks; seventh, 40 Mongolian pheasants or 50 Mallard ducks; eighth, 30 Ring-neck pheasants; ninth, 30 Ring-neck pheasants; and tenth, 50 Ring-neck pheasants.

Winners of prizes in the southern counties of the state will be permitted to choose Bobwhite quail or Hungarian partridge if they prefer.

Birds Plentiful Because the sportsmen have recently enjoyed one of the finest upland game bird seasons in Wisconsin, it is believed that they will be seeking to insure future years of similar sport. Ruffed grouse, prairie chickens, sharp-tailed grouse, ring-neck pheasants, Hungarian partridge and quail are, on a general average, more plentiful now, notwithstanding the recent open season, than they have been for many years. Protection, cycle, stocking, refuges, winter feeding—all have played their part towards this result. The most important factor, however, has been the past two mild winters and, above all, abundant and available food.

No one likes to see a starving bird. With subzero temperatures and the howling blizzards of a normal Wisconsin winter, hundreds of thousands of our game birds will suffer. Without feed tens of thousands of them will die. Practically all of our native species and all of our introduced species of game birds have the stamina to come through if they can be well fed. Cold weather does not trouble them if they have sufficient food. But if they are half-starved they freeze to death in comparatively mild weather. The principal factor, as in 1930 and 1931, is available food and the campaign now being launched is intended to guarantee the food supply. The Outagamie Fish and Game Protective association has already sent in its entry blank and will hold a meeting Thursday evening at 7:30 at the Actual Business College to organize its forces.

Last winter country sportsmen maintained 24 hopper feeding stations in different parts of the hunting area. Many of the hoppers were built by local boy scouts in the junior high schools. The boys also turned out under the direction of members of the association and built a number of the necessary brush shelters for the hoppers so that they would not be covered by drifting snow, but would be always easily accessible to the game birds. Some of these stations were regularly visited by scores of prairie chicken and pheasants; one by a dozen quail and one by four partridge. This latter is considered very unusual, as the partridge is not a ground feeding bird, but it is believed that these particular individuals were tempted by the weed seed with which that hopper was filled.

Purchase Grain In preparation for this year's winter feeding program, 1,000 pounds of buckwheat were purchased last spring and parcelled out to inter-

In Ten Years the Speed of "Long Distance" has been Increased 500%

The speed of connection of Long Distance Telephone calls has been increased more than 500% since 1922. The average elapsed time, today, between the filing of a Long Distance call and the operator's report is 1.8 minutes. Almost always that report is "Go ahead, please."

High speed is only one of the many advantages of Long Distance Telephone Service. Improved operating methods and modern equipment have made the service as clear and convenient as on local calls.

These improvements have been accompanied not by an increase, but by a decrease in cost. During the past six years Long Distance rates have been reduced four times. The average total reduction for 500 miles is approximately 35%.

This achievement in bettering the service and decreasing the cost of "Long Distance" is just another step in the fulfillment of the policy of the Bell system, "to furnish the best possible service at the lowest cost consistent with financial safety."

THE RELIEF CAMPAIGN

Now that the atmosphere has cleared sufficiently of political oratory to permit clear thinking about other matters, it is time to give attention to the pressing need for emergency relief among our own people. The annual campaign opening today deserves not only the sympathetic cooperation but the financial support of every person who has an income, even if that income has been materially reduced from better days. We must not forget that the purpose of this campaign is to help those who have no income at all.

Perspective is a hard thing to keep at any time, and particularly difficult in times like these. The temptation is to look only at our own losses and our own difficulties and to forget that however unfortunate we are, there are even in this little city many people much worse off.

The welkin has been ringing with political pleas, but we must not forget that there would be no politics if it were not for the warm hearts and generous hands that hold our society together. Government, it is true, has stepped into this emergency to help where it can, but government is restricted to relatively narrow limits. Outside these limits there still is the demand which the government cannot meet. It is to fill this need that Appleton Relief and Welfare Council is appealing to the good men and women of our city this week. It is appealing to the individual to make good on his responsibility as a citizen.

Appleton has never failed in an emergency and it will not fail this time. We will face our problem squarely and courageously. The need for emergency relief is very great. All of us recognize that. We need no sensational appeal to open our eyes or touch our hearts. We see our duty and we mean to perform it.

So we as good citizens, as real Appletonians and real Americans, we tighten our belts and carry on. Whatever may be the manner of approach in this campaign, whether it be from a solicitor or in the form of a card delivered by our employer, we will give to the very utmost of our ability and with a prayer of thanksgiving in our heart that we are among those able to give, and not in the army of those who must be helped.

NEW ASHFORD'S GLORY

Once every four years fame stops for a fleeting visit in the little village of New Ashford, Massachusetts. For five successive presidential years New Ashford has held the distinction of being the first community in the country to report its presidential vote.

Not a large village—75 as reported in the 1930 census—her greatest civic ambition is to vote and count early in a presidential election, to be the first community to confound the straw ballots but recently holding sway.

Having acquired its reputation in 1916 the village has now become a slave to it, as does fame so often become a heavy burden. The polls are open from 5:45 to 9:45 a. m. and for days previous to voting time the electorate is checked and double checked to see that all are prepared to exercise their right of franchise and do not lie abed when presidential morning dawns. Breakfast is served at the polls but this year unexpected complications arose which threatened the record when one enthusiast, scorning all offers of a lift, insisted on walking the two miles between his home and the voting place bearing along the country road a Roosevelt banner on which was painted a horseshoe.

However, all voted and the result was officially announced at 6:28 a. m., two minutes later than the 1928 record, but the glory that is New Ashford's still shines afar.

The townsfolk cast 24 ballots for Mr. Hoover, 6 for Mr. Roosevelt, one ballot was blank. One citizen is thought to have voted while still asleep.

UNION, DOOR COUNTY

Whenever maps are made by Democrats the town of Union, Door county, will be symbolized by a star more conspicuous than that reserved for the cities of London or New York.

For Union, though casting the sizable vote of 241, didn't contain a single voter whose pencil even hesitated above the Republican column.

True, one beknighted citizen, tempted by the Evil One, voted for Mr. Thomas, perhaps, or let us hope, because the Socialist candidate was a former clergyman. But the other 240—what a solid phalanx of alert, vibrant, protesting Democrats!

The historian must forgive Union that one Socialist vote. It is easier to pardon a slip of that kind than to justify a vote for Mr. Hoover. That, at least, will be the Union doctrine.

Most of us have known for long that Union touched upon expansive waters whose cool breezes make men more reserved, slower to act, and soberer withal.

And today Union is obscure to no one. Its name will live in fame's proud temple and in the bright lexicon of democracy its star will outshine anything from South Carolina or Alabama.

The proud southerner, glorying in the record of his particular community that may have gone from 5 to 50-to-1 for the Democratic ticket must now be brushed aside, for Union would scorn such a feeble and timid record. For Roosevelt—240, for Hoover 0! That is the true record. The one vote cast for Thomas was just a maverick from Marinette across the bay.

When Union speaks there will never be any reason for misunderstanding her meaning—a fine place too for President Roosevelt to summer.

THE DEBTS

While there was of course no agreement in that regard both political parties abandoned during the campaign any extensive consideration of the important subject of international financial obligations, although both candidates had expressed themselves as opposed to cancellation and yet willing to enter into any conference with our debtors in the effort to evolve some satisfactory plan that might actually work in practice.

President Hoover's invitation to Governor Roosevelt to immediately participate in the pending requests of European nations for a modification of the debt agreements, both because the questions involved will extend into the next presidential term and because all political parties will have in mind but one primary ultimate goal—what is best for America under the circumstances, was as wise as well as friendly invitation. In our relations with the rest of the world we should have no partisan differences.

Ordinarily these debts must be paid in one of three ways, with gold, goods or services. There is not enough gold in the world to pay them. Goods are a drug on the market. Services we need not.

Senator Borah suggested a plan for scaling down the debt in proportion as war armaments are scaled down. If the rest of the world will quit spending so many billions in preparation for war we need not spend so many billions. And although the rest of the world would gain in this respect as much as America and should be as willing for that reason to reduce armaments as we are, the plan is not without merit in its trading features.

Governor Smith advanced a plan to swap debt payments for foreign trade, and during the course of the campaign President Hoover added finishing touches to this plan by providing conditions tending to minimize or prevent harmful effects, that might otherwise result, from visiting themselves upon American commerce. Here too is a proposal containing meritorious features.

The Hoover-Roosevelt conference upon this subject, if it is fortunate enough to result in a conclusion agreeable to both Republican and Democratic parties will still contain a further advantage of no mean consequences—the advantage of keeping our foreign relations out of the hurly-burly scramble of our political forum and into the better prepared hands of the diplomatic department vested with such authority under our constitution. We may have had presidents and ambassadors who have made errors in dealings with foreign nations but they have been few and far between.

Opinions Of Others

MUST THEY FIGHT?
According to figures made known today in Bogota, more than seven million pesos (normally $7,700,000 in many other currencies) have been subscribed for the purchase of war-bonds in view of the very critical situation in Colombia. It now appears that the commissions ratifying the Salomon-Lozano treaty were much too optimistic when they believed that this document would procure lasting peace between Peru and Colombia.

It is now claimed, for instance, in the Peruvian paper, El Comercio, published in Lima, that Leticia, though situated on the fringes of Colombian territory, is in reality a Peruvian town, and inhabited almost exclusively by persons of that nationality.

"The present dispute," declares El Comercio, "is traceable entirely to the error of forcing natives of Peru to live under a foreign government, and without first obtaining their willingness to do so, in territory that rightfully pertains to their own country."

That, in brief, is the answer to our hospitality. Peruvians live in security and peace in our land, and render our kindness by fomenting troubles for our government of such a nature that loyal Colombians are perforce obliged to emigrate from their own birthplaces. Fearing attack, a number of our compatriots have left Leticia, and sought a refuge in Brazil.

It is to forestall this Peruvian invasion and usurpation that our departments (states), municipalities, and banking, commercial and industrial enterprises are subscribing so liberally to the war-loan for the national defense. The Banco de Republica, the Banco de Bogota, Banco de Colombia, and many other financial institutions, including the Banco Central Hipotecario and the Caja de Credito Agrario Industrial, are offering every facility to private citizens who also wish to prove their patriotism by buying these bonds.

The loyalty of our people is being amply testified. Diario Del Comercio (Barranquilla, Colombia).

HERE it is the middle of November already . . . just a month and a half left for 1932 . . . hooray . . . if time weren't so precious, it would be swell to see 1934 come rolling around instead of 1933 . . . but a year of life—no matter what kind of a licking you take—is a year of life and you might as well get the most out of it that you can . . . anyhow, the football season is nearing its end . . . to the relief of the people who don't care what happens on the gridirons of the country and to the disappointment of the football nuts . . .

It has been noised about generally that Mickey McGuire did not actually score that last touchdown at Madison on Saturday, which doesn't make any difference because the officials awarded the six points anyway. As a matter of fact, Mickey was downed about a foot from the goal line, underneath a pack of Minnesota tacklers. While in that uncomfortable position, he noticed the lack of distance and coyly smuggled the ball a foot ahead. When the officials untied the pack, there was the ball—over. What are the odds? There was still time for another play or so and the Badgers were too inspired and Minnesota too dazed to have kept the touchdown from being scored on the next play.

It used to be that cigarette manufacturers never dared to inject femininity and sex appeal into their advertisements. Now, it'd be a surprise to see a cigarette ad without a beautiful gal in it.

Remember back when the papers were full of cartoons showing John Barleycorn being laid to rest, cartoons with John B. all buried, with a tombstone erected over his head, with 1918 inscribed on it?

It begins to look as though John B. wasn't all caught up at that. He was just taking a nap. But bringing him out of the grave is a job for the cartoonists to solve—without being sacrilegious.

Now come demands on your conscience and generosity to help the Red Cross along, and to give to the Appleton Relief and Welfare Council (or to your own relief council if you don't live in Appleton) for the greater needs which this winter will bring.

Even if you haven't a grain of sympathy in your make-up, even if you're more broke than ever (and whoahall isn't) there's one other factor to take into consideration:

Most amateur burglars, most rioters and most communists are made up of hungry men, poorly clothed, tired and cold. Convention doesn't mean a thing to a starving man. Hungry women or children—well, perhaps, they can't do as much damage as a hungry man, but . . .

To Neenah and Menasha high schools, congratulations for putting up a snappy game last Friday night.

Just Folks

THE POSSIBLE ANSWER

Oh, we sit around our tables and we talk of this and that, And life goes on forever in its even, solemn way, For in spite of our inventions and the wisdom of our chat, There's none of us can ever keep the tears of grief away.

"The cities are too crowded," says a grey-beard sage we love, But men are fond of cities and you'll never change that whim, Though poets sing of pastures green and opal skies above, The youngster in the country hears the city calling him.

"The need is for employment," cries another. We agree, But who can give employment till the people start to buy? Of such a vicious circle who the end can clearly see? Well, not a man impractical and soft of heart as I.

For not by laws or promises will courage come again, And not by stocks which rise or fall will happiness return, For the anguish of the city is the country dweller's pain, And all men go to business for the money they can earn.

Then what may make us happy? Just the will to do with less, To face life as we find it without whimpering or dismay, To quit the money standard as our symbol of success, And somehow get to living in a friendlier sort of way. (Copyright, 1932, Edgar A. Guest)

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

ARTIFICIAL FEVER AS A REMEDY

Nine out of ten laymen, even those who purport to be educated, think the high fever of lobar pneumonia ("lung fever") is an unfavorable feature of the illness, and the crisis a perilous event. The physician knows that the fever, within ordinary limitations, is beneficial to the patient, and hails the crisis as a happy ending of a brave battle.

Likewise with sore throat. When child gets acute sore throat with high fever, we may feel reasonably assured of the outcome of the illness, but if the child with the sore throat has only a little fever, then there is reason for alarm.

Certain drugs produce, as one of their physiological actions, lowering of the body temperature, whether the temperature be normal, below normal or above normal. Old time physicians, having only crude conceptions of pathology (nature of disease) and therapeutics (science of treatment) sometimes administered these drugs to lower the temperature in cases of fever, and in every instance decreasing the patient's chance to win his battle.

Not invariably but as a general rule we must regard fever as a natural method of cure. In explanation suffice to mention that the increased heat within the body makes a less favorable environment for the multiplication of disease germs, and at the same time increases the activity of those chemical or metabolic processes concerned in the development of immunity. If this is too technical for you, just skip it. Instead let me assure you that fever is a good thing for what ails you.

Physicians had long noticed that in certain prolonged chronic illnesses, if the patients happened to suffer some intercurrent acute illness with high fever, a remarkable remission or improvement in the chronic illness followed. Thus in numerous instances patients in an advanced stage of physical and mental infirmity from paralytic (general paralysis) have recovered sufficiently to resume domestic or business activities following an acute attack of malaria.

Notwithstanding the vehement assertions of the various fad healing cults that all disease is due to a displaced bone, a pinched nerve, a mental error or some vague failure of the body to "throw off" some equally vague "toxic poison," as the ignoramus calls it, malaria is caused by inoculation of the blood with the germ or plasmodium, as it is scientifically known. No matter whether the agency of inoculation is a mosquito or a hypodermic needle. The bite of an infected Anopheles mosquito or a wee injection of a bit of blood from a person who has acute malaria, will produce the disease in a healthy person. Likewise it will produce the disease in a sick person. The inoculation of parasytic and locomotor ataxia patients with malaria has been practiced in a great many cases in recent years, and where the chronic disease process is still progressive, that is, the germs or virus still active, this malaria inoculation often brings about a vast change for the better. Of course it is futile to expect any great improvement if the original syphilis has practically burned itself out and left only broken down or degenerated organs and tissues.

In another talk other means of producing therapeutic fever will be described. The little lesson in hygiene today is this: A tolerable amount of fever is good for your illness.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Whence The Claret?

When a person receives a blow on the nose and bleeds from what blood vessel does the bleeding come? (E. S.)

Answer—From an artery or vein on the septum or cartilage that partitions the nasal cavity.

Do gasoline lamps used for illumination in a house give off carbon monoxide gas just as an automobile does? (Mrs. E. F. A.)

Answer—Any fuel that burns may give off carbon monoxide if insufficient air is supplied to the flame, so that combustion is incomplete. Of course a lamp could give off only a small fraction of the quantity an engine gives off.

Mercury Poisoning

I am a sufferer from mercury poisoning. If I allow the wind to blow on me in the vicinity of the poison I am almost sure to get it. Can you tell me how to acquire immunity? (W. C.)

Answer—I do not know. As you do not explain, I surmise you work with mercury. Arrange the ventilation or install exhaust fans to carry the fumes away.

Your Own Physician Knows

I am 42, have had tuberculosis three years, the first six months of which I spent in a sanatorium. Would sunbaths be good for me, and if so, how often and how long? (W. O. W.)

Answer—Surely a patient who has the advantage of six months education in a tuberculosis sanatorium would not be so foolishly as to attempt to get along without medical advice. Only your own physician can decide whether sunbaths would be beneficial. (Copyright, John F. Dille Co.)

Seen And Heard In New York

BY WILLIAM GAINES

New York—One of the most dangerous places in town for a mere man is a huge Herald Square department store, jammed every open minute with bargain-hungry women.

A friend of mine (a halfback in college football and still a man of considerable stamina) was commanded by his wife to shop for an article on the eighth floor of the emporium on a recent Saturday afternoon. Not knowing his way around the store he got into the crush at the northeast elevators—the worst possible spot for the poor fellow.

There are half a dozen or so elevators at this point, and he noticed that some of the hardened women shoppers would take their stand at the doors of other cars before the signal even indicated they were nearing the ground floor.

So he fell in behind a cluster of impatient waiters, only to soften at the last second and let women push ahead of him and fill the car.

Finally, in desperation, he stomped to the elevator on the end of the row, which for all he knew might not come down until the following Tuesday, and squared himself in front of the door. He would be first. But he was alone there only an instant. Two obese ladies with arms full of bundles crowded so close upon him as to shove without reason.

Relentlessly he braced himself against the door and, not realizing perhaps, how grim his visage had become, he glowered over his shoulder.

One of the heavy sisters gasped at him and clucked to her companion. "Just like the dog in the manger!"

Prosperity Pumpkins

The more optimistic words of a few novelty shop keepers I encountered before Halloween indicate that the trade in jack-o'-lanterns, orange crepe paper and witch and skeleton cut-outs was up this year, if that means anything to an anxious public.

They sold more party decorations for this Halloween than the last one—sold 'em cheaper, but the little profit columns totaled more.

Just overheard a bit of the conversation of two Spanish-looking gentlemen sauntering along Park avenue.

One pointed with his cane to a new hotel which bears the name of a famous old landmark, wiped out in a building spree. Evidently the other had mellow memories of the gone but not forgotten institution, for his companion was telling him: "Yes, but anything over 10 years in America is old. It must give way."

A few minutes later, in front of the public library on Fifth avenue, I saw something which is not improbable—may never happen on Fifth avenue again. Two horse-drawn vehicles crashed, as one was turning east into Forty-first.

"What're yer doin' in this street wid horses, anyway?" the policeman wanted to know.

In his later campaign speeches Horace was termed "aging Quaker." Now let's see whether those old Quakers supposed to take it on the chin and then turn the other cheek?

The Democrats spent more than $827,000 during the current campaign; Republicans spent $1,555,000. The question now it was it worth it?

Germany's high court decided that President von Hindenburg had the right to appoint Chancellor von Papen to the dictatorship of Prussia. Nothing like making sure.

Prof. Einstein now says the earth is 10,000 million years old. You'd think the old thing would know better.

"Steel Dividend Taken to Show Clearing Skies," says a headline. It's about time those financial weathermen picked a winner.

Governor Pinchot says we think too much of our bankrolls. Well, there's no harm in reminiscing once in a while.

The Boy Scout leader who offers the practice of whistling as a cure for the habit of pipe-smoking should be asked also to prescribe a cure for whistling.

The counterfeiter who is said to be trying to dispose of an issue of $20 bills must be super-optimistic.

A Bystander In Washington

BY HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington—Predictions were made rather freely some two years ago that Wallace White of Maine would lose no time in getting started when he moved over to the senate from the house.

He succeeded a man who was plainly disgusted with the senate and most everything about it. Senator Gould, who was a railroad man before entering politics, was glad when his term came to an end—told his colleagues so before departing.

They filibustered too much to suit him and wasted too much time, he said.

But so far White has elected to play a silent role in the senate. He's still busy learning his job.

Fourteen years in the house and more than 30 years "on the hill" evidently have taught him the wisdom of being sure of himself before striking out.

Expert on Shipping Laws

He knew a great deal more about the senate perhaps when he first took his seat than some of his colleagues who had been sitting for years.

He began his political career on that side of the capital when just a young man. After graduating from Bowdoin College in 1889, he came to Washington to take the job as assistant clerk to the committee on commerce. Later he served as private secretary to the potent Senator Frye of Maine.

It was this association with Frye, whose legislative hobby was maritime affairs, that is responsible for White being today one of the real experts in congress on shipping legislation. However, he has so schooled himself on the subject of radio that in that field he is a recognized expert. The radio act passed by congress in 1927 bears his name as a co-author.

Alert, informed and courteous, he is considered a rather difficult person to know intimately. He is naturally reticent and modest.

A Worker

He seems to do nothing much but work. If he does anything else for recreation no one professes to know anything about it.

During the years he has been interested in shipping legislation he has paid particular attention to safety of life at sea. He headed the American delegation of prominent shipping men which attended the international safety congress held in London several years ago where preliminary steps were taken to formulate a maritime safety code.

Since he represents one of the chief maritime states he never is at a loss for opportunities to pursue his hobby in all its phases.

Along about this time of the year we cold sufferers commence to wish some brilliant scientist would discover the influenza germ—and keep it!

U. S. Harmony On Debt Issue Is Necessity

World Economic Crisis Forces Roosevelt to Enter Discussions

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Washington — Conferences between President Hoover and President-elect Roosevelt on the debt question and all other problems facing the interim government that America has at Washington until the new administration comes in are not a sudden or unexpected development.

For several weeks prior to the election, the certainty of the Roosevelt victory gave rise to discussion among Roosevelt advisers as to what policy the president-elect would pursue toward the Hoover administration. If the president-elect conferred with the president, would it not place upon the new chief executive the responsibility for all important acts of the preceding four months? Should the president-elect assume the role of party leader in reference especially to the house of representatives which is controlled at present by the Democrats and will continue to be so controlled in the next Congress?

If it were not for the world economic crisis, Mr. Roosevelt would simply say he did not wish to interfere with the completion of Hoover policies and that he did not care to offer any advice. But the problems of the hour are not so readily brushed aside.

Problems Must Be Met

Not only must the debt question be tackled in some way immediately but the same applies to other vital problems which if started on a tack that the Roosevelt administration disapproves can only result in embarrassment if another tack is then begun by the new administration.

The nations of the world are waiting for a debt settlement or negotiation and they believe serious injury to the psychology of recovery will develop if the debt question is postponed until after March 4. Furthermore if Mr. Roosevelt were to adopt that course he would have to call congress into extra session to ratify any agreement reached and this would mean postponement of a final settlement until next spring which is something the allied powers are most anxious to avoid.

With congress in session next month and controlled by the Democrats, the foreign governments feel that now is the time for some steps to be taken. Mr. Hoover is not recommending any course of action to Mr. Roosevelt, merely reviewing what has happened and asking the president-elect's desire. It is presumed that Mr. Hoover will follow almost any course dictated by Mr. Roosevelt since it will be publicly known that the policy is a Roosevelt wish.

May Study Data

It is quite conceivable that Mr. Roosevelt will want more time to familiarize himself with such confidential data as President Hoover possesses, especially the details of the intimate conversations between Premier Laval and Mr. Hoover, but after that have been furnished it is not likely that there will be any delay on the part of the president-elect in formulating a course.

Mr. Roosevelt will be brought in to the governmental situation on a number of questions before March 4 because the appropriation bills to be passed at the session of congress which convenes next month are not only to supply deficiencies for the four months from March 4 to July

Bureau of Standards Conducts Thorough Analysis of Stones

BY RUBY A. BLACK
(Post-Crescent Washington Bureau)

Washington — An investigation of the physical properties and weathering characteristics of Wisconsin granite is being conducted by the Bureau of Standards, acting director Lyman J. Briggs of that department announces in his annual report made public today.

The investigation of the commercial granites of the nation was started during the fiscal year 1932, which ended June 30, 1932. Fifty samples were collected from Wisconsin, Maine, Minnesota, Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Connecticut, North and South Carolina, Georgia, and Texas.

Other projects of this highly technical bureau and its staff of distinguished scientists of interest to Wisconsin include:

Cooperative investigation with the Bureau of Fisheries of the measurement of mesh size of gill netting used in Great Lakes in an effort to develop standard measuring equipment and standard methods of use acceptable to various jurisdictions involved.

Investigation of manufacture of Kraft paper from wheat, oat and rye straws.

Cooperative investigation with University of Alabama in attempt to eliminate obnoxious odors from kraft-paper manufacturing processes.

During the past fiscal year, the Bureau held informal conferences with State officers of Wisconsin to further cooperation.

Yes, Scott Turner Has Been Around

El Paso, Tex.—Scott Turner, 52-year-old director of the U. S. Bureau of Mines has been around and seen things.

It was revealed at a recent meeting here that Turner once spent 5 years ruling an icy kingdom near the North Pole, governing 600 square miles of waste land rich in coal deposits. At the time it was no man's land, and Turner made his own laws and acquired private title to the territory for American coal and iron operators.

Turner is one of the survivors of the Lusatian disaster. He was on the way to sell the northern mining in 1923, but for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1933 and running to July 1, 1934. This means that the congress which meets in the four months prior to Mr. Roosevelt's inauguration will shape the fiscal policy of the government for 16 months after March 4 or about a third of the four year term of Mr. Roosevelt. The budget cannot be balanced for the first third of Mr. Roosevelt's term according to his ideas unless he furnishes concrete recommendations on budget cutting at the December session of congress.

Orders Firms to Quit Violations Of Trading Act

State Department Charges Lumber Companies With Infractions

Madison.—An order to cease and desist from further violations of the unfair trade practices act has just been issued against a number of lumber yards in and around Rice Lake and Ladysmith by the department of agriculture and markets following investigations which were begun last summer.

Complaints against the O. and N. Lumber company were dismissed for lack of evidence, and complaints charging control and division of territory against the Hammond-Olson Lumber company, Clover Belt Lumber and Supply company, Holbrook Lumber company, and the Glen Flora Lumber and Supply company were dismissed for want of evidence.

The order against any further attempts or agreements to fix prices named the Bertram-Wright Lumber company, the Clover Belt Lumber and Supply company, Hammond-Olson Lumber company, Beckwith Lumber company, Lampert Yards company, Andersen Yards company, Glen Flora Lumber and Supply company, and Holbrook Lumber company.

With the exception of the Hammond-Olson company all of the eight concerns were also ordered to cease and desist from combining or agreeing among themselves or in any other way to hinder or prevent or eliminate competition in building materials.

An order against attempting to obtain a division of territory and business or from agreeing not to compete against each other was issued against the Bertram-Wright Lumber company, Beckwith Lumber company, Anderson Yards company and Jake Lampert Yards company.

Favor Free Tests

In issuing the order the commission declared that the public interest is best promoted by allowing free experimentation by business men in running their affairs. The test of their efficiency is the patronage of consumers who must be allowed freedom to patronize whom they wish.

"The policy of our system," it declared further, "is opposed to unreasonable restraints of trade. Some restraint of trade is reasonable and necessary because in reality it promotes fair competition more than it restrains."

In order to secure genuine free competition, the commission pointed out that the market must be open to sellers, the sellers must be free to fix their own prices, and there must be no restriction of production.

It was also pointed out that while these principles of competition had been adopted by the people of Wisconsin and the United States, many criticisms of their operation have been made. Over-crowding of particular industries has resulted from it and destructive competition is frequently in evidence, particularly in periods of depression, but also in many industries even in times of relative prosperity.

The commission referred to allegations that some manufacturers had established what amounted to a boycott of independent dealers or those who were willing to do business on a small margin. The opinion states that while the retailers' association undoubtedly holds a tremendous power to coerce manufacturers and wholesalers to do its

THE NEW CONTRACT CODE

★ ANALYZED BY AN EXPERT ★

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of three articles on the new contract bridge rules by Lieut. Alfred M. Gruenther, U. S. A., to whom the nation's experts turn as referee of their important tournaments. He originated at the Lenz-Culbertson match. He will compare in detail the new and old penalties, the reasons therefor, as well as the philosophy of the scoring changes.)

By LIEUT. ALFRED M. GRUENTHER, U. S. A.
(Written For The Associated Press)

The new International Contract Bridge Code which became effective in the United States, France and England Nov. 1 should be enthusiastically received. It is a definite step forward. Penalties for infringements of the laws have, in general, been considerably ameliorated. Following is an analysis of new and old rules:

EXAMINING A QUITTED TRICK
NEW LAW—A trick may not be examined after it has once been played, except to settle a dispute involving ownership of trick. Penalty—Declarer or left hand opponent may call a lead when next it is the turn of the offending side to lead.

OLD LAW—Any player could examine a trick until he or his partner had played to the next succeeding trick. There was no penalty for infringement.

COMMENT—It always has been annoying to have a player look at a trick. There is no good reason why a player cannot remember cards as they are played.

THE REVOKE
NEW LAW (a) A player "revokes" when he fails to follow suit when able to do so. However, revoke penalty is not assessed until "the revoke becomes established." The revoke is established as soon as the offender or his partner leads or plays to the next trick.

(b) Penalty for established revoke is two tricks for first revoke and one trick for each succeeding revoke. Tricks shall be transferred to the non-revoking side and scored as if that side had actually won the tricks in play.

(c) If no tricks are taken by revoking side after revoke has been committed there shall be no penalty. If only one trick is taken then only one trick shall be paid to the non-revoking side. Thus, assume that South is playing a contract of four hearts, and that the East-West pair win the first four tricks, the fifth trick being won by Declarer; and on that trick West revokes. If Declarer then wins the remaining tricks there will be no penalty for revoke, since revoking side failed to win any tricks after the revoke. The Declarer, therefore, has been set one trick on his four heart contract.

(d) If a player holds a card of a suit led and fails to play it when playing to the twelfth trick, that error must be corrected as soon as it is discovered. In no case will the penalty for an established revoke be assessed.

OLD LAW—The penalty of two tricks for first revoke and 100 points for each succeeding revoke was prescribed under the 1926 code of laws. Furthermore, there was no consideration given to the question as to when revoke actually took place.

COMMENT—It always has been considered unfair to collect tricks on a revoke penalty when revoke could have no possible effect on the play. The term "revoke" (failure to follow suit when able to do so) has been abandoned. Now instead of a penalty for a "revoke" and another for a "renewance," there is one penalty for "an established revoke," and a different penalty for a "revoke."

CORRECTED REVOKE
NEW LAW—If an opponent of Declarer revokes and his attention is called to the irregularity before revoke becomes established, Declarer is permitted:
1. To treat the card played in error as an exposed card, or
2. To require the offending player to play the highest or lowest card of the suit in which he failed to follow.

OLD LAW—Penalty under old law was the same. It was known as penalty for a renounce.

INSUFFICIENT BID
NEW LAW—If a player makes an insufficient bid and attention is directed to the error by either adversary or by partner, the bid must be made sufficient, though there is no requirement that it be made sufficient in the same suit.

Thus, a player who makes an insufficient bid of two clubs over two spades may change his bid to three no trump if attention has been called to the insufficiency. The partner of the insufficient bidder is then barred from bidding when next it is his turn to declare. Thereafter the partner may reenter the auction.

OLD LAW—The old penalty barred the partner of the insufficient bidder from any further bidding on that deal.

COMMENT—The penalty imposed by the former law was too severe.

REVIEW OF THE BIDDING
NEW LAW—During auction any player may ask for review of bidding when it is his turn to declare. After auction is completed, and before first lead is made, any player may ask for complete review of bidding. After opening lead has been made any player may demand to know final bid but review of bidding may not be requested.

OLD LAW—No review of bidding was permitted after last player had passed.

COMMENT—The vast majority of bridge players have always permitted review of bidding until opening lead was made.

(Tomorrow, Lieutenant Gruenther will discuss remaining changes in penalties for infringement of the laws.)

Mother Has Right to Chose Her Own Pattern of Life

BY DOROTHY DIX

Dear Miss Dix—I am a widow and for the last sixteen years I have devoted my entire life to my son. I have denied myself all the indulgences and amusements that women usually have and spent all of my time and money in trying to educate my boy. He is now in college. A very fine man who is able to provide for me and give me a good home and for whom I have a great affection, wants to marry me, but my son is very resentful of my marrying any one. I have been putting this man off for two years and he has become tired of waiting for me and tells me I must make a decision in the matter and either take him or leave him. What shall I do? A. B. C.

Answer:

I unhesitatingly advise you to marry your man and thereby secure a happy and safe old age for yourself. Pay no attention to your son's objections. He may pout for a little while, but he will soon get over it and see that you have done the wise thing for him, as well as yourself.

DOROTHY DIX

Of course, it is natural for a petted and spoiled only child, who has monopolized his mother for years, to be jealous of any stranger who takes any part of her attention away from him. He has thought of his mother as belonging to him so completely that he can't conceive of his slave rebelling and demanding a little life of her own. He thinks all the happiness she should desire is just in ministering to him.

Perhaps the greatest shock any child ever gets is when it first realizes that its mother is a human being with a human being's natural craving for pleasure and amusement and independence.

Undoubtedly, it will give your son a lot to find out that you are a woman as well as a mother, and a woman attractive enough for a man to be in love with, but that he cries out in protest ask him if you are willing to forego a marriage for his sake, will he be willing to forego marriage for your sake? Ask him if he will be willing to stand at home of evenings with you and bear your company instead of going out with the other youngsters? Ask him if he will be willing to give up some girl he is in love with in order to support you and provide you with a good home?

That is the point of view that the children will react to their mother's marrying never stop to think of. They don't want mother to marry, but neither do they want to have mother as a burden upon them. Many children keep their mothers or fathers from marrying and then resent having to have mother or father live with them. Which is natural, but not very pleasant for mamma or papa.

When a boy starts to college, his mother has done for him all she can. His dependence on her is over. His need for her is virtually gone. And she has lost him, so far as companionship is concerned. He has begun the business of life and it takes him farther and farther from her. That is all perfectly proper. The young bird should leave the home nest.

But it leaves the mother lonely and desolate, and the best thing she can possibly do, under the circumstances is to marry again if she can find a suitable mate, some man whom she can love and who loves her and with whom she can re-establish her life and make a new home.

Married to a man of her own age, she finds a congenial companionship. She has somebody who is dependent upon her, somebody to get up good dinners for and fuss over. She has the independence of being mistress of her own house and having her own position in the community, and her life has meaning and point to it, as it does not have if she is a lonely widow leading a vicarious life in the lives of her children and worrying them about from school to school. And it is far better for the children, because she leaves them free and untrammelled instead of being a parasite upon them.

A widow with little children may well hesitate to marry because there is always the chance of their getting a stepfather who will mistreat them, but when the children are practically grown and able to defend themselves, this danger is eliminated, and then she has nothing but her own choice in the matter.

DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix—I am a girl of 16 and in about six months I expect to become a mother. I have a stepmother who has always disliked me very much and who is turning my father against me and I dare not think what they will do when they find out. The boy in the case is willing to marry me, but I know that he no longer loves me and is only offering to do so from a sense of duty, and I love him so much that I will commit suicide rather than marry him and spoil his life, also. Can you give me a ray of hope quickly, or is death the only way out?

DESPERATE.

Answer:

The Salvation Army—God bless it—opens a door of refuge for unhappy girls in your plight. You can go to the nearest one and the angels of mercy who run it will take you and see you through your trouble.

But I think you are quixotically self-sacrificing in refusing to marry the boy simply because he is willing to do so from a sense of duty. For he has an inescapable duty in the matter, and if he has a shred of honor in his whole composition he will be happier in doing a man's part and fulfilling his obligations to you and his child than he will be in turning sneak and coward and quitter and leaving you to bear the whole load of shame alone. The knowledge that he was yellow enough to do a thing like that would wreck a man's life more than any marriage could.

Besides, there is an even more imperative reason why you and this boy should marry than your own feelings in the matter. You both have an obligation to your unborn child greater than you have to each other. You have no right to let that come into the world

GOOD TASTE TODAY

INVITATIONS

Dear Mrs. Post: When a formal invitation is received on a visiting card, what is the correct reply?

Answer: The wording of a "formal" invitation MUST be in the third person: Mr. and Mrs. John Jones request the pleasure of—and so on. An invitation on a visiting card is informal even were a thousand of them sent out. It may, however, be answered in the third person or with a return card reading "Coming with pleasure" or "Sorry! We can't come." Depending upon whether you know the hostess slightly, or intimately well.

Dear Mrs. Post: (1) Is it correct to use a visiting card when accepting or declining an invitation to a wedding reception? If not, what paper is used, what size should it be? (2) Also, if one declines the invitation, is it necessary to send a present?

Answer: (1) A conventionally engraved wedding invitation is a formal invitation and must be answered in the third person, by hand on note paper of any size that comes in a folded sheet. Single sheet paper is not quite proper, but a correspondence card will do if your writing is so small that the note can be neatly written on one side of it without writing on the other side. (2) Not if you know the bride and groom slightly. For that matter it is not necessary to send a mere acquaintance a present, even if you accept. And you would send a friend a present whether you can go to the wedding or not.

Dear Mrs. Post: In addressing wedding announcements to business friends of my fiancé, am I correct in always addressing them "Mr. and Mrs." in cases where the gentleman is married? In many cases the wife has not met either of us.

Answer: Yes. Invitations would, however, be sent to the man's business address. This is because if the wife should not recognize the name as that of an associate of her husband, she is likely to think it a general invitation from an unknown somebody on her general visiting list and throw it aside without thinking to mention it to him. On the other hand, if he receives it he will probably take it home and tell his wife about it.

A BOOK A DAY

BY BRUCE CATTON

Sappho Of Lesbos

Sappho is generally recognized as the greatest woman poet that ever lived. And yet there are hardly 200 lines of her poetry in existence, and they are mostly scattered and incomplete fragments and very little is definitely known of her life—so little, indeed, that no biography of her has been available to the ordinary reader.

Now comes Arthur Weigall with "Sappho of Lesbos," a full-length biography of more than ordinary interest. Mr. Weigall has consulted the antiquarian, source-books faithfully, and with labor that must have been very extensive he has pieced together an account of Sappho's life which, if not as complete as one might wish, is at least far better than anything previously accessible.

In places this biography has much more to say about the life of Sappho's era than about Sappho herself. But that, after all, is fair enough; what it has to say is interesting, and Mr. Weigall is always careful to indicate when he is recording proven facts and when he is indulging in conjecture. The book includes, also, all of the lines of Sappho's verse that are known to be extant.

Incidentally, Mr. Weigall explodes the tradition that there were two Sapphos, one a poet and the other a courtesan, and shows that it was Sappho's own slightly scandalous behavior that gave rise to the myth.

Knitted Ensembles Score High in Style

Knitted ensembles are flattering and stunning this winter, especially when they are made-to-order for their wearers and fit perfectly.

The four-piece ensemble (left figure) in rich fuchsia tones has many points of interest. The alpaca knitted frock has full puffed sleeves embroidered in gorgeous colors in alpaca wool. There is a little cape jacket and a jaunty little walking hat, with a bit of wool trim.

Slenderizing and swanky is the brown and beige alpaca wool knitted outfit (right figure), the frock being made in a suspender style, with a scarf made of the checked weave of the blouse and the jacket fashioned of the brown of the skirt. The hat is brown, with a touch of beige yarn for a banding.

Don't Credit Children With Too Much Emotion

BY ANGELO PATRI

Grownup people are too much given to crediting children with emotions they do not have. This tears them out and does the children no good. A mother met me with tears streaming down her cheeks. "I cannot tell my son this. You must change his marks. It will break his heart to find that he only got an eighty when he expected to get over ninety."

"Doesn't he know his marks? How did you get them before he did?"

"I know how sensitive he is so I went to the teacher and asked for his mark and she gave it to me. I am so disappointed. I know he will be heartbroken. You cannot let him suffer like this. You must change this mark."

Marks cannot be changed. If they can they are useless. I explained this to the weeping mother. "Your boy doesn't seem to me to be the sort that would suffer because he got an eighty-seven instead of a ninety-seven. I'll call him in and tell him about this, if you don't mind."

"O, no, no, don't do that. I couldn't bear to see him suffer as I know he is going to. Please change his mark."

When I saw the lad I asked him what he got in biology. "Not so bad. I got eighty-seven. I wanted a better mark but I left out half of the seventh. I didn't see it. Guess I was too excited. And I didn't reduce the equation in the last one. I'll do better next time. I won't be so scared about it." He went off smiling. He had none of the emotions his mother had saddled upon him. It was her own that she was projecting toward her boy, suffering when no suffering was necessary.

People do that often. "I hate to send him to bed he is having such a good time." "I feel so sorry for him leaving his grandfather. He won't ever get over it in a hurry." "Poor child. He wanted a set of chessmen so bad and he didn't get them. His whole day is going to be spoiled." "What will we ever do? All her friends live here and she is so wrapped up in them and in her school and we have to move. It will be a shock to her. I'm afraid she will not get along. It's too bad, too bad."

Don't do that. Youth and childhood, as well, are not so stiff in their emotional joints as you are. They can adapt and adjust and begin anew when you couldn't. Their emotions have not the roots yours have as a general thing. Such wounds as they receive are easier healed than your own. Don't accent the emotions you feel. Put a cheerful face on whatever comes and help the children to take it lightly.

Haven't you seen a happy child begin to cry after one look at its mother's face? Haven't you seen a cheerful child become suddenly downcast and even sullen after a glance at his mother's countenance? I have. Emotions are easily transferred to children. They have enough of their own without any of yours added. And they must be protected from your own overstimulated moods. It is not fair to enjoy your distress at the expense of the children and that is really what you are doing at times when you dwell on the distress they are going to feel. They usually feel nothing of the sort.

Anyway, why not let the children have their emotions first, hand? They get along better with them if they do.

My Neighbor Says—

When a splinter has gone very deep into the flesh try extraction by steam. Heat a two-thirds full with very hot water and place under the injured spot. The suction draws the flesh down when a little pressure is used, and the steam in a few minutes removes both splinter and inflammation. This method is particularly good when the splinter has been in for some time.

If salt in salt shakers is damp, put the shakers on the back of the stove until the salt dries.

John opened the wardrobe door. No frocks hung in ordered rows. "She's gone," he said. "And she's in a mood to do it."

"There's a note on the mirror," Sue answered. "Funny! Anybody still leave notes?" She had to say something, anything.

Variety of Bids Result In Duplicate Contract

BY ELY CULBERTSON

DUPPLICATE ON MAIN STREET

"One of the most interesting features of Duplicate Contract Bridge is the almost unbelievable variety of results obtained at the different tables," remarks Mr. H. L. DeWolf of Valrico, Florida.

The hand below was played recently at the Tampa Bridge Club, of Tampa, and almost caused a riot, with the results ranging from six notrump doubled, down 1 by North, through six clubs doubled, down 4 by West to three notrump doubled, down 6 by West. Apparently, no one seemed willing to let the bidding take its correct course.

He then goes on to give the happy result at the table where he played. "The bidding," he states, "after a desultory start, blossomed into full flower, running the whole gamut from the Simian to the Jacobean." Mr. DeWolf states that he is "only a country boy," once a week drives a truck twelve miles into Tampa to get to play with the good players, and that his partner was one of those so-called Bridge players whose wives do not play. Such a man can bid as he pleases. Their bidding was (the notes are Mr. DeWolf's).

4 Men Nabbed In Campaign on Slot Machines

Judge Takes Sentence Under Advisement as Three Plead Guilty

Neenah—Four men have been arraigned in municipal court at Oshkosh as the result of a campaign to drive slot machines from the city. The men were arraigned Saturday by Sheriff Arthur Nelson. The raids were made by county motorcycle officers Irving Stilt and Harold Nielson, Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

Three machines were confiscated at the Andrew Borenz roadhouse on Highway 41 in the town of Menasha, and when arraigned in court Monday, Borenz pleaded guilty to being the operator of slot machines. Sentence was taken under advisement until Thursday. Another machine was confiscated at the roadhouse operated by Alex Dombrowski in town of Menasha and after Dombrowski's plea of guilty his sentence also was taken under advisement until Thursday.

Pleas Not Guilty
Arthur Bartenstein, taken into custody following a visit to the Princess Pat on Highway 41, pleaded not guilty to a charge of permitting one machine to operate and his trial was set for Nov. 20. Bond was fixed at $100 and the jury will be drawn Nov. 28.

Henry Wolf, town of Winneconne, taken into custody as the raid continued Monday, pleaded guilty when arraigned in municipal court this morning and his sentence also was taken under advisement by Judge Spengler until Thursday.

The drive to wipe out a slot machine ring operating in the county opened several weeks ago when District Attorney F. B. Keefe issued a warning that he had knowledge of the illegal operation of the devices in the county and recommended that the practice be discontinued.

Although both Keefe and Sheriff Nelson leave office Jan. 1, as neither stood for reelection, they said that the fact they have only a short time to serve did not deter them from doing their best to stamp out rackets of all kinds as long as they are in office.

Need Enterprise To Gain Success

Doudna Tells Why Some Men Fail and Others Forge Ahead

(Special to Post-Crescent)
New London—E. G. Doudna of the normal school Regents of Wisconsin, spoke at the Rotary club meeting Monday noon. He discussed the lives of two men, William Stephen Hamilton, son of Alexander Hamilton, and Henry Dodge, Wisconsin's first territorial governor. As youths, it can be believed, they had equal chances for success. The son of Alexander Hamilton, it would have been supposed, had all the requisites for success in leadership and constructive thought and action. On the contrary, the speaker brought out, this man, although blessed with everything apparently valuable in life, was lacking so that any enterprise he undertook seemed to fail at the eleventh hour. Dodge, continued Mr. Doudna, became territorial governor twice, and was one of the most striking figures in early state history.

The speaker added that surely something either tangible or intangible, lends itself in the lives of men and women so that some attain their goals and others fail. Gov. Dodge's success came when others would have guessed that Hamilton would have been the one to succeed. Sometimes, some influence lends itself to each life, the speaker said, and this is something over which no one can exert control.

One of the peculiar clauses in early history was given in an aside in Mr. Doudna's talk, when he was reading clauses from early state laws it was shown that a ruling was once passed that no banks should ever be formed in this state. The speaker pointed out that it is usually the belief that laws of our country were formed by old men. This was untrue, the speaker said. The men who lived active parts in the country's history were young men, many in their thirties. This condition should prevail today, that young men take active places making history.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

MONA MORAN, receptionist in a Wall Street law office, goes with her childhood sweetheart, STEVE SACCARELLI, to a popular supper resort, the Halcyon Club. Mona lives on Third Avenue, supports her invalid father, mother, little sister, KITTIE, and ne'er-do-well brother, BUD.

Steve has been mysteriously absent from New York for three years. Now he appears, well dressed and prosperous. With no thought of impropriety, he has ordered a gown and wrap sent to Mona which, after much indecision, she decides to wear.

At the office that day Mona had met BARRY TOWNSEND, rich and socially prominent, but refused to dine with him. However she cannot dismiss Barry from her mind. Mona is pleased at the improvement in Steve's appearance and manner but does not think she is in love with him.

Bud Moran comes to the Halcyon Club to see BUCK HARKINS, the proprietor, who has underworld connections. It appears that Bud is becoming involved with gangsters. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER VIII

"W H Y, it's Lottie!" Steve exclaimed, directing Mona's gaze across the room.

It was indeed Lottie. She had not seen her friends, apparently, for she was not looking at them. Lottie sat at a wall table on a platform slightly raised above the rest of the floor so that she could watch the floor show (when it began) over the heads of the other diners. Just now she was eating busily and neglecting her companion quite mercifully.

Her escort was a bored looking youth with sandy hair, dinner-coated, morose and rather distinguished. The evening was not pleasing him. But, looking him over, Mona observed that this young man belonged to that group of society that never is--by tradition and precept pleased. He lived to be bored and Lottie would serve for company as well as anyone else.

"Great Heavens, the girl is having breakfast!" Mona added, amused. But Mona was not really amused at finding Lottie here, ready at any moment to join them. Steve's interest in Lottie rather irritated Mona. Half an hour before he had been making love to her!

"Breakfast?" repeated Steve, his eyes on Lottie and humor reflected in his tone.

Lottie had just finished a huge half grapefruit sunk in a silver basin of ice and was about to attack an omelet when she spied Mona and Steve.

She waved a fork gaily at their table and called--much to the chagrin of her escort--"Hello, Mona, darling. And Steve! Why, where--when in the world did you get in--or out?"

Mona stiffened, her face flushing. How could Lottie behave so! The amusements in the other girl's voice meant that Lottie believed, or pretended to believe, that old story that Steve had been in prison. It was gossip that had died away three years ago. Perhaps Lottie thought it rather cute to pretend she believed it. Privately Mona knew Lottie was as convinced as Mona herself that the gossip was not true.

The evening, begun so pleasantly, was ruined. How could Lottie say such a thing? She was rarely thoughtless and never malicious! Why was she here at all, with so many other places in New York to go?

"Oh, I've been around for a week or so," Steve was replying cheerfully, unperturbed by the implication in Lottie's greeting.

"Yes? Monna didn't tell me."

Lottie raised her coffee cup to her lips smiling. Then that's all right," she remarked. "Just so long as she hasn't been holding out on me. Meet the boy friend?" With a wave of her hand she indicated the young man opposite. "Perhaps you can help cheer him. I'm making no headway at all and I'm keeping the bill very low."

Flushing, the young man rose stiffly.

"Mr. Parker, Monna Jimmy, Miss Moran, Mr. Saccarelli. We thought Mr. Saccarelli was dead--or something. Now all at once he comes to life again!"

Young Parker bowed distantly, disinterestedly and sank again into his chair. There had been dissension between him and Lottie all evening. It was clear that Lottie believed she had gained a point.

"Jimmy is never very happy here," she went on coolly. "I like this place though. Don't you Monna?"

"Yes. But we've only been here a few minutes."

The orchestra began its low wailing "Let's dance," Steve said abruptly.

Monna rose gratefully. She remembered that she had always liked to dance with Steve. In the three years of absence his feet had lost nothing of their skill. Their steps fitted as perfectly as they had in times gone by.

"You dance as wonderfully as ever don't you?" he said softly.

"You're a wonderful partner, Steve. Been dancing much?"

"Not at all. Except in my mind with you."

They were dancing dreamily and rather perfectly, swaying slowly, dipping in unison. They might have been the only couple on the floor. The leader of the orchestra watched them admiringly, followed their steps with careful attention. Mona and Steve might have been professional who had practiced together for years. Their faces were rapt, their feet in perfect accord, their bodies swaying.

"Remember that contest at Cloc-verland?"

"We didn't win it, Steve!"

"I didn't, but you did. And how I punched the guy who took the prize cup home!"

"The judges gave it to him though, Steve."

"Then the judges were blind."

"Oh well! She smiled and was again lost in the spell of the dance.

Beyond the tables there was a paneled wall, half concealed by palms. Mona and Steve danced across the tiny floor nearer this wall. Suddenly the paneled wall solved itself into a door. It must lead to a private room--the manager's office, most likely.

As Mona watched carelessly the door opened. A dim figure, silhouetted against the light within, appeared in sharp relief for a brief instant. Mona gasped.

It was Bud!

The boy slid almost furtively across the carpeted space which led to the outer door. His hat was in his hand. His almost stealthy steps made it plain to observers that he was an intruder rather than a participant in the expensive frivolity of that gay room.

"Why, why--" Mona cried, paling and startled. She stopped short, bringing Steve up to the side of the tiny floor in dismay.

"I just saw Bud coming through that door!" Mona explained swiftly. It must be the office or something. What business could Bud have here? He told me he was working tonight!" Her lips curled.

"But--here?" Steve gently persuaded her to dance again for people were watching them. "Are you sure it was Bud? Yes, that's the office of the club owner, I believe. Maybe Bud's job brought him here."

"From Fordham?"

"These fellows have a hundred interests. Bud might have come on an errand or a delivery. They aren't the sort to trust things to the mails or messenger boys."

Mona stiffened. "What things?" she asked, her lips tight.

"Oh, Monna!" Steve laughed helplessly. "How should I know? Anything! It might be a pound of a favorite kind of cheese. Night club owners never eat the food from their own kitchens, you know. Suppose it was Bud--what of that? Why are you so worried, dear?"

The girl's lip quivered. "I am worried about him. Terribly worried, Steve. He doesn't work regularly. He is so mysterious. Always broke, too, and we need the money. I can't help worrying about him. I don't like Bud's being here. Aren't clubs of this sort run by gangsters, Steve? I'm afraid it means that Bud's gone--or going--wrong!"

"I see!" Steve's own face became serious. He thought a minute. "You've been seeing too many movies, Monna. He doesn't work regularly. He is so mysterious. Always broke, too, and we need the money. I can't help worrying about him. I don't like Bud's being here. Aren't clubs of this sort run by gangsters, Steve? I'm afraid it means that Bud's gone--or going--wrong!"

"I'll teach that double-crosser to take what's coming to him!" Buck threatened as he explained to Lottie what he had just heard about Steve and his mission in New York.

"You don't say?" Lottie exclaimed, shaken from his usual lethargic mood to actual interest. "Saccarelli's in the legal end of the game, eh? And stepping out with the Kid's sister! Say--it looks like a clean-up, don't it?"

WATCH THE DOGS! Salt Lake City, Utah--If you see a dog on your golf course, keep your eye on your golf balls. Players at Nibley Park course found a new racket involving a boy and a dog recently. The boy had trained the dog to run after balls that had been hit out of sight by players. The dog would bring the balls back to the boy and he'd pocket what he had just thrown. Caught the pair in the trick both disappeared and haven't been seen since.

Minnesota Given Little Chance to Humble Michigan

Gophers Lost Prestige by Losing to U. W.

Brown Jug at Stake; Purdue, Indiana Battle For Bucket

CHICAGO, (AP)—Along with battling to put a bright finish on its season by taking the "Little Brown Jug" away from Michigan Saturday, Minnesota will be out to explode a legend that has become tiresome to Gopher ears.

The legend has to do with a notion around the Western conference that Minnesota cannot beat Michigan as long as the Wolverines have a chance at a football championship. Back as far as 1923, Minnesota could have won the Big Ten title by defeating a crippled Michigan eleven. The Wolverines, however, managed a 10 to 0 victory.

The teams met twice in 1926, Michigan winning the first game at Ann Arbor, 20 to 0. Northwestern also was undefeated that year and a Minnesota triumph in the second meeting would have given the Wildcats a clear claim. But Minnesota, in spite of rolling up a huge margin in first downs, was beaten, 7 to 6. Minnesota victories in 1930 and 1931 would have kept the Wolverines out of ties for titles, but Michigan managed to win those engagements, 6 to 0, and 7 to 0 respectively.

Michigan ranks as the choice, and unless an upset is accomplished, the legend will have another chapter, and the Wolverines will own another championship.

Purdue, with a chance to win the title if Michigan should be upset, may face Indiana in their annual "old oaken bucket" party without quarterback Paul Pardonner, who suffered an ankle injury at Iowa last week. The Hoosiers matched that one by announcing that Bill Rehm, regular, would be out of the battle because of injuries.

Work was easy in most camps yesterday, only Michigan and Indiana taking more than light drills. The Wolverines went over plays prepared for the Minnesota game, and the Hoosiers studying a defense calculated to slow up Purdue's buzzsaw attack.

Brecklin rolled a 644 series with scores of 245, 202, 197, the Kraft Cheese of Appleton rolling in the Mid Wisconsin league lost two games and the match to the Alhambra of Fond du Lac. Two other members of the league collected 500 totals and one slipped into the 400 class. R. Currie rolled 198, 227, 194—614 but then failed to help the Appleton team.

The game scores follow:

Dunn's 187 gave the Writings a win in the first game, the margin being five pins, and her 129 in the second accounted for the other victory. H. Brock's 193 gave the Bristols the third game. Brock also had 193, 181 but his mates failed to help much.

Knee Injury May End Hamas' Boxing Career

New York (AP)—A knee injury threatens to end the boxing career of Steve Hamas, promising young heavyweight from New Jersey.

Hamas wrenched ligaments in his knee several months ago and spent six weeks in the hospital. An operation was performed but the injury failed to respond to treatment.

Forced to the fistie sidelines, Hamas has returned to his first athletic love, football. A star at Penn State, he now is coaching Montauk high school's eleven.

Stagg Sending Team Out for 391st Time

Chicago (AP)—Add this to your statistical data on Amos Alonzo Stagg, the university of Chicago's athletic director.

When the "old man" sends his team out to battle Wisconsin in the final game of the season—probably his last game since he is to be retired next June—it will have been the 391st time he has sent the maroons into action during his 41 years on the midway.

Carroll Meets M. U. Cagers in Two Games

Waukesha (AP)—Carroll college and Marquette university will meet twice in basketball this season, once on each team's home floor, according to Coach Vince Batha. The Hilltoppers will come to Waukesha, Feb. 20 and the visit will be returned Feb. 28.

The Pioneers have scheduled games with Western State college of Michigan and Monmouth, Ill., in addition to their regular Big Four schedule.

Chaff 'n Chatter

By Gordon R. McIntyre

ALTHOUGH the Milwaukee and Madison scribes were singing a lot of praise to Mickey McGuire in that Wisconsin-Minnesota game at Madison Saturday, it appears that at least one and old Doc Speers himself paused long enough to pay honor to Appleton's representative on the squad—Harvey Kranhold.

The doctor, in a story written over his name said "Kranhold deserves quite a bouquet for playing a great game at tackle, where he substituted for the ailing Molinaro. It was Friday night when it became apparent Molinaro would be fit for only part time duty and Kranhold was shifted."

Ronald McIntyre of Milwaukee's Sentinel makes the statement "And, for Kranhold, we'll say he played one of the best games of his career." Appleton fans who attended the game, and there were plenty of them, also came home with words of praise for the efforts of Kranhold, who of course was watched continually while performing.

The Fox River Valley football conference is becoming something of a relationship affair. . . . there are no less than three sets of brothers operating on the Valley gridirons this fall. . . . The Kliska boys, Harold and Captain Al.

Kimberly, Hilbert In Practice Game

Kimberly—Kimberly high school will play a pre-season game with the strong Hilbert high school team on the Kimberly courts Tuesday evening. Coach Harpers' squad is big and lanky this year besides being especially good ball handlers and a banner season is expected. The Kimberly mentor had 20 men out among them every letter man but Hofkins who graduated. The highs will be pruned down to ten men soon but it is likely all will be used in the Hilbert game.

Mascot Now Coach
Chick Kunitz, one-time mascot of the New York Yankees, is to coach the Richmond Hill, N. Y., baseball team next season.

Older Boy Managers Will Meet Friday

A meeting of representatives of Older Boy basketball teams will be held at 7:30 Friday evening at the Y. M. C. A., according to C. C. Bailey, boys' work secretary. League rules will be discussed, eight teams recruited for play in the loop and plans made to start the season on the first Tuesday in December.

The league has been in existence about two years and plays twice a week, Tuesdays and Saturdays. Last year eight teams made up the loop playing a regular schedule and then a round robin schedule.

Golf Caravan At Pinehurst

Turnesa, H. Smith, Hagen, Armour Among the Pros Competing

Pinehurst, N. C., (AP)—A large portion of this country's best professional golfing talent started a quest for $2,500 in cold cash over Pinehurst's tricky number two course in the mid-south open tournament today.

Some 115 golfers teed off for 36 holes of best ball play today. Tomorrow will see 36 holes more, each golfer on his own.

Among the entrants were Mike Turnesa of Elmford, N. Y., who won the individual crown last year with a record score, and young Horton Smith, winner of the opening fall money tournament on the Kenwood course, Washington, last week.

In tune-ups yesterday, Tom Cravay clicked the best, turning in a 69, two under par.

Other well-known pros entered included Walter Hagen, Tommy Armour, Bobby Cruikshank, Ed Dudley, Alice Watson and Clarence Hickey. The favorite contender from the Carolinas was Henry Picard, 23, Charleston, S. C.

George Barker Sets New Distance Mark

New York (AP)—George Barker, New York University's long distance running ace, finally has realized an ambition of three years' standing.

Beaten off in two previous attempts at the title, Barker yesterday outran a field of 111 rivals to win the intercollegiate cross country championship in new record time.

The New York University star ran the six mile course in Van Cortland park in 28 minutes, 58.45 seconds, nearly 30 seconds under the record set at 29:26.6 by Dan Dean of Pennsylvania last year.

Barker won by a good 50 yards from Joe McCluskey of Fordham with Tom Ottey of Michigan State third and Arthur Foote of Harvard fourth.

Minneapolis Holds Six Day Bike Race

Minneapolis, Minn., (AP)—Eleven two-man teams will start pedaling today in this city's second six-day bicycle race. The first six-day grind was held here a year ago when the Canadian pair, William (Torchy) Feden and June Audy, won both the crowd and the race. They are teamed again in this year's race and occupy the position of favorites.

The field also includes the veteran Reggie McNamara of Newark, Iron man of bike racing, and his partner Al Crossley of Bedford, Mass. The German Bernhard Stubecke and Freddie Zach of Switzerland, also raced here last year, are paired again.

Three of the riders reached Minneapolis late Monday after waiting 36 hours in Windsor, Ontario, to overcome difficulties with immigration authorities. The three Polly Parrott of Ireland, and Frank Ellyotte and Lew Rusch, both of Vancouver were admitted to the United States only after Senator Henrik Shipstead had interceded for them at Washington, D. C.

Marquette Drills for Game With W.J. "11"

Milwaukee (AP)—Heavy scrimmage again was on the program for the Marquette University football squad as Coach Frank Murray prepared his men for their first game in two weeks, that with Washington and Jefferson to be played here Saturday.

The players seemed to have benefited from their last week-end vacation for they drove through the second team for three touch-downs.

Art Krueger's place at center was filled by Chester O'Hanlon. Krueger has a leg injury which may keep him out of practice a day or so longer.

'Ivy' or 'Red', They Still Mean Wolverine Captain

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP)—Capt. Ivan Williamson, field leader of the 1932 University of Michigan football team, has two nicknames.

"Ivy" fits when the teams are lining up for scrimmage, but it's "Red" Williamson when he goes down the field to catch a pass or when opponents try to turn his end.

This is Williamson's third year a right end on the Michigan eleven, and Wolverine fans have nominated him for All-America consideration.

A doubtful quantity before the season opened because of a leg injury, Williamson regained good physical condition before the first game and has been the "iron man" of the Michigan squad.

He has been on the receiving end

Appleton Reds Wallop Algoma; Score Is 20 to 0

Close Season Here Sunday When They Play Green Bay Wolves

DESPITE the cold and snow, the Appleton Reds kept their slate clean by downing the Algoma Badgers 20-0 at Algoma Sunday afternoon in a hard fought game.

About fifty Appleton fans braved the wintry blasts, which were blowing across Lake Michigan, to watch the locals chalk up an impressive victory. Algoma was never inside of the Reds 40 yard line and only twice did the locals punt.

The Reds received, and on a sustained drive carried the ball to the Algoma 30 yard line where it was lost on downs. The remainder of the quarter saw Algoma punting, with the Reds marching right back only to lose the ball when the backs slipped on the icy field.

Algoma sent in a constant stream of substitutes in an effort to stop the drives of Lund and Barfell. In the second quarter Algoma punted to Barfell, who returned the ball to the Algoma 40 yard line. On the first play, Barfell passed to Douglas for a 14 yard gain. With first down and ten to go Lund passed to Barfell for a touchdown. N. Fredericks failed to kick the extra point.

Early in the third period Lund sent a beautiful punt to the Algoma ten yard line. Algoma made a first down on running plays, plus a five yard penalty. On third down with five to go Algoma attempted a pass, which Chuck Sanders intercepted on the 30 yard line and scampered across for the second touchdown.

Fredericks sent the oval through the uprights for the extra point.

Algoma received but was unable to gain and punted deep into Red territory. After an exchange of punts, with the ball on their 25 yard line, the Reds started a relentless drive up the field. With only two minutes remaining Barfell went back into the fray as quarter.

On the first play Barfell passed to Douglas for 30 yards. On the next play Lund passed to Kamps, who was hit, but managed to throw himself across the goal line for the final score. Again Fredericks added the extra point, sending the ball squarely between the uprights.

Three plays later the game ended with Algoma in possession of the ball on their own 30 yard line.

Sunday the local club closes the season when it meets the strong Green Bay Wolverines, a team that beat Clintonville, 12-0, while the Reds could only draw at 0-0.

The Green Bay club also defeated Algoma 20-0 and 32-6. The Reds beat the same club 20-0 and 26-0. The locals will work out Tuesday, Thursday and Friday evenings with the object of finishing the season Sunday.

Sunday's lineup:

Reds
C. Sanders L.E.
Kamps R.E.
Horn R.T.
Steiner L.G.
Blick R.G.
Stark C.
Barfell L.H.
Douglas L.H.

Joey Thomas Tops Pro Fight Card at Point

Stevens Point (AP)—Joey Thomas, Chicago, lightweight champion of New Zealand, will meet Charlie Crocker, Iron Mountain, Mich., in an eight-round bout as part of the Stevens Point athletic club's double wind-up show here tonight.

The other feature attraction will be between Herbie Thompson, of New London, and Wallie McElwaine, Eau Claire, at 130 pounds.

Other bouts include: Dick Richards, Sheboygan, vs. Mike Kelly, Minneapolis, 130 pounds; Windy Thomas, Stevens Point Teachers' college, vs. Eddie Lee, Loyal, 140 pounds; and Paulie Landon, Rudolph, vs. Max Joseph, Wisconsin Rapids, 135 pounds.

Tony Won It Young
Tony Canzoneri, only 18 when he won the featherweight championship, was the youngest to ever hold a title.

WHEN BUSH SIGNED TO MANAGE REDS

If Donie Bush can take his pennant-winning ways to Cincinnati with him, the lowly Redlegs are destined to rise out of the cellar of the National League. Donie copped the league pennant for Pittsburgh in 1927, and had a successful 1932 season at Minneapolis, in the American Association. Above Bush is shown at left signing his one-year contract, with Joe Meagher, secretary and treasurer of the club, center, and Sidney Weil, president, right.

Badgers Second Highest Scoring Team in Big 10

MADISON (AP)—With only one more game on its schedule, Wisconsin ranks second among Western conference teams in the race for scoring honors this year and has a good chance to finish high in the defensive standings.

On the basis of non-conference as well as conference games, Purdue leads the league on offense with a total of 130 points. The Bullermakers added 18 points against Iowa to make its hold on first place more secure.

Wisconsin's 20 points against Minnesota brought its total number of points for the season to 133, just six behind Purdue. Michigan occupies third place with 120 points while Chicago is in fourth place with 88.

The other conference eleven trail as follows: Ohio State 87, Minnesota 86, Illinois 79, Northwestern 72, Indiana 58, Iowa 56.

Chicago Held Chicago scoreless last weekend and thus kept in first place in the race for defensive honors with only 13 points. The Wolverines are far in advance of the other conference teams so far as defensive work is concerned.

Purdue, the second best defensive team on the basis of scores made against it, has 35 points while Minnesota is third with 39 points against its season record.

Wisconsin and Ohio State are tied for fourth with 41 points and Indiana is in fifth place with 51 the other teams rate in the following order: Northwestern 70, Chicago 76, Illinois 98 and Iowa 127.

Although he only gained six yards against Minnesota, Joe Linfor Wisconsin halfback, remained the best ground gainer of the Badger squad with a total of 297 yards. Hal Smith ranks second with 192 while Clair Strain, also fullback, added 70 yards against Minnesota for a total of 160 for the season. "Mickey" McGuire, halfback, was the next best ground gainer with 138 yards.

McGuire leaped into the lead in the individual scoring by turning in three touchdowns against Minnesota. He has scored 30 points this year. The individual scores follow:

	Td.	Pat.	To.
McGuire, half	5	0	30
Linfor, full	2	10	22
Smith, full	3	0	18
Strain, full	2	0	12
Peterson, half	2	0	12
Fontaine, half	1	1	7
Kabat, guard	1	0	6
Schmeller, end	1	0	6
Kummer, guard	1	0	6
Haworth, end	1	0	6
Sanger, quarter	1	0	6
M. Pacetti, guard	0	2	2
Totals	20	13	133

The Huskers completed sixty-one running plays and the panthers executed 53 running plays.

Punts and Passes

Cambridge, Mass. — If the usual tradition is observed, Harvard's starting lineup against Yale will have Naro and Hageman at end, Kardy and Bancroft, tackles; Gundlach and Esterly, guards; Hollowell, center; Wells, Crickard, Barrett and Dean, backfield. That's how the team lined up yesterday and tradition has it that the lineup used the Monday before a Yale game is the one that will be in at the opening kickoff.

Wayston, Ill.—Harry Leeper, Ft. Wayne, Ind., sophomore, is confronted with a somewhat tough task. He has been picked to fill the shoes of Pug Rentner, Northwestern backfield ace, who suffered two fractured ribs last week.

Ann Arbor, Mich.—Their season will end this week, but Michigan's stars are still going to football school. They've been given a lot of new plays to assimilate before the closing game with Minnesota.

West Point, N. Y.—With all due respect to West Virginia Wesleyan's excellent team, it wasn't because of its game this week against Army that made the cadets drill behind curtains yesterday. Army is looking ahead to the Notre Dame and Navy games.

Philadelphia—Talking about hard luck, consider the case of Eddie Masavage. The veteran Penn quarterback had set his heart on winding up his college career in a blaze of glory against Cornell Thanksgiving day but instead he's hobbling around on crutches with only an outside chance of getting into that game.

Yank Jumpers Win Military Trophy

New York (AP)—The international military jumping championship still belongs to the United States army team.

Major Tupper Cole's American trio defeated France, Canada and the Irish Free State in that order in the championship at the national horse show last night, winding up with only four faults against eight for France, 20 for Canada and 24 for the Irish Free State.

Major Cole, on the chestnut gelding, Joe Aleshire, and Lieut. C. W. Raguse on Ugly, completed the difficult course in faultless fashion, but Tan Bark, ridden by Lt. E. F. Thomson, faltered at one obstacle and was charged with four faults.

Season at Jefferson
Jefferson Park racing track at New Orleans will open Thanksgiving Day this year and will close with the Jefferson Derby Jan. 21.

Fields to Defend Title at Coliseum

Must Show Before Dec. 28 To Retain His N. B. A. Crown

Chicago (AP)—Jackie Fields, world welterweight champion, will defend his title Dec. 8 at the Coliseum, if a suitable opponent can be obtained.

Fields already has signed for a championship bout with Young Corbett of Fresno, Calif., at San Francisco Feb. 22. However, the earlier match is planned to enable him to defend his title before his National Boxing association time limit expires Dec. 28.

A match between George Nichols, Buffalo, recognized by the National Boxing Association as light heavyweight champion, and Frankie Battaglia, Winnipeg, Manitoba, was in prospect today for the Chicago Stadium, Nov. 30.

Battaglia, winner of 26 of his last 30 bouts on knockouts, is growing so rapidly that he is finding it difficult to make the middleweight limit. In his last bout, in which he defeated Young Terry, Trenton, N. J., Battaglia weighed 163 pounds.

Tuffy Griffiths, Sioux City, Ia., heavyweight, will meet John Schwake of St. Louis, in a ten round bout at St. Louis Nov. 28.

Barney Ross, Chicago contender for the world lightweight championship, has signed for a ten round bout with Johnny Farr of Cleveland, at Milwaukee Nov. 25.

Statistics Show Pitt and Huskers Played 12 Minutes

Lincoln, Neb., (AP)—No wonder there wasn't any scoring in the annual gridiron battle of the Pittsburgh Panthers and Nebraska Cornhuskers here Saturday. They actually played less than 12 minutes.

Although the game lasted the regulation 60 minutes, data compiled by one of the university coaching classes show only 11 minutes and 53 seconds of it was spent in actual play. Of that time, Nebraska had possession of the ball 6 minutes and 16 seconds, and Pittsburgh held the ball 5 minutes and 37 seconds.

The Huskers completed sixty-one running plays and the panthers executed 53 running plays.

Claims Business Failures Due to Low Farm Prices

Farmers' Union Chief Thinks Democratic Regime Will Provide Relief

two planks of his party's platform. He has also asked us to keep our representatives in Washington and help him to keep the wolves off his back. That is Franklin D. Roosevelt's challenge to us. Shall we accept it or shall we refuse to heed his challenge and let the wolves overpower him and destroy him?

Simpson stated that the Farmers' union was instrumental in blocking passage of a sales tax bill in the last session of congress through organization, "of a revolution in the house" against it. He added that "our success in the battle on taxation saves every farm family in this nation $25 per year."

He warned that "the big fellows" will be present at the next session to raise further revenues by taxing the common people. "We will need to be on the job," he cautioned. Asserting that the government has loaned millions of dollars to big steamship companies at low interest, Simpson said: "The small home owning farmer is as much importance to the life of this nation as any steamship company that ever existed or as any European nation. If the government can afford to loan to steamship companies at less than 1 per cent interest, can afford to cancel the principal debt and make low rates of interest to European countries on what they owe us, it can afford to advance farmers at 13 per cent interest and we pay the principal."

Raps Gold Standard
Simpson described the gold standard as "the best scheme of money system for a handful of bankers to control the prosperity and happiness not only of this nation but of the world."

"We maintain that for this nation to remonitize silver would divest these international bankers of the power they now possess to destroy agriculture and industry," he added. "Congress should restore to itself the power given it under the constitution to issue and regulate the value of money."

Pleading for an application of the interstate commerce law to farm marketing, Simpson said: "We do not want the government to regulate the marketing of our exportable surplus but we do ask that it regulate the marketing of that portion of our crop consumed in this country."

Flashes of Life

(By the Associated Press)

'Fleeing Riches'

London—Miss Patricia Wallace, daughter of Edgar Wallace, noted novelist, got into difficulty about a dress maker's bill. A judge told her she must spend 10 days in jail if she does not pay the $2 pounds at the rate of two pounds a month.

Wallace, thrill wizard, made a fortune during his life time, but when he died his family found he had left them almost penniless. Patricia, accustomed to wealth, went to work for five pounds a week. The judge was informed she had bargained to spend 60 per cent of her income for apartment rent.

Law Wants Teeth

Novi Sad, Yugoslavia—Teeth—gold ones—worth 6,000 dinars are being hunted by the police. Some thief stole them from the showcase of a Russian woman dentist. She hopes his conscience bites him if the teeth don't.

Job With Pedigree

Chicago—City Sealer Joe Grein finds there's nothing new in his job, which is to prevent such dishonesty as a butcher weighing his hand with the meat he sells.

He's been reading history and says he can trace the history of the department of weights and measures back to the Babylonians of 4,500 years ago.

"The High Priest Dudu was the first sealer history records," he says.

Old Love Letters

Kingssee, S. C.—Sixty-seven years after they were written, letters from a young Confederate soldier to his wife have been delivered here—but she has been dead for years.

The letters were written by Lieut. S. I. Montgomery while stationed at Fort near Charleston. They were sent here by Dr. Myron W. Smith of Red Wing, Minn., who explained he found them in papers of his father who was a colonel in the Union army. How the colonel got them was not explained.

Deserves A Big Slice

Philadelphia—When fire broke up a wedding banquet in the meeting hall of the Bakery and Confectionery Workers' union one heroic guest prevented a total loss. He saved the wedding cake.

Put Him On The Carpet

Harrisburg, Pa.—A rug cemented to the sidewalk in front of a furniture store two weeks ago to demonstrate its wearing qualities certainly made a hit. Somebody stole it last night.

Crabs weighing 10 pounds were caught recently off the coast of England.

By CLAUDE A. JACGER (Associated Press Financial Editor)

New York—(P)—Selling, dwindled to a few trickles in today's stock market, but the list failed to develop important rallying power, after yesterday's slight upturn was largely lost, and plus and minus were mixed at the finish, with changes largely narrow. The turn-over approximated a million shares.

After pushing up moderately in the middle of the day, the list eased off when early strength in wheat disappeared, but strengthened again in the final dealings. A few issues finished with gains of a point or more. As a whole, the market was dull, and transactions reflected little save operations of floor traders. Chesapeake and Ohio ordered the regular dividend.

Coca-Cola had another sinking spell, losing about 4 points, but it recovered a point. A loss of more than 2 in drug was cut in half. Case rose 2 points, lost its gain, then recovered to finish up about a point. Other issues up a point or so at the finish included American Telephone, American Can and Union Pacific. U. S. Steel, recovered after sagging a point. United Aircraft, recent favorite gained about 2.

The number of impending dividend actions evidently made traders hesitant, although the principal one of the week, American Telephone's tomorrow, was expected to be recovered a point and quarters to another regular quarterly payment of $2.25 a share, although there was some uncertainty about it. What is, of course, more important than dividends, is corporate earnings. The ordering of dividend disbursements not fully earned appears to have lost its erstwhile salutory effect upon the market.

An item of interest bearing on the international financial situation was Germany's report of its foreign trade for October, showing an excess of exports over imports of $4,000,000, unchanged from September. The export surplus for October of last year, however, amounted to $38,000,000. The sharp shrinkage in the Reich's favorable balance of trade has complicated its problem of maintaining payments on external debt.

Grain Notes

Chicago—Bullish news is the most dominant note in the wheat market at present, but LaSalle-st traders said they do not expect a run-away bull market. Trading has become more active in all pits with an increase in out side as well as local interest. Grain is expected by local operators to follow rather closely in the wake of other markets for some time.

T. H. Sherwood of the Walnut Creek Milling company, has suggested that the milling industry get behind a movement to give a sack of flour to needy persons this Christmas. Mr. Sherwood said that the plan would "do a lot for the hungry persons who receive the flour and at the same time would do a great deal for the milling industry and for agriculture, if enough people respond."

No rain of consequence was reported yesterday in the dry sections of the winter wheat belt. Crop reports from Missouri indicated that the reduction in acreage in that state would be greater than previously expected.

Unfavorable weather conditions over the western part of the corn belt during the past few days is affecting the movement of new corn to terminals. This condition is expected to obtain for several days.

The northwest is offering barley freely and local brokers said there are prospects of a big business with malsters in case the proper grades of grain are delivered.

Hog Prices Again Dip Downward

Receipts Continue to Over-shadow Demands at Chicago Yards

Chicago—(P)—Buyers took another tuck in hog prices today as receipts continued to overshadow volume of offerings supplied a week ago. Trading went forward slowly, packers with 8,000 hogs direct being under no pressing necessity to secure fresh material in the open market. Bidding was largely 10-15c under Monday's average and sales of good to choice lights and butchers at $3.30-3.40 were only 10c to 20c above the season's low point, registered on Nov. 1.

Eastern fresh pork markets were active and a cold wave spreading over much of the country promised to expand demand. Loins were $1.00-2.00 under Friday's quotations. About 4,000 state hogs were carried over and were neglected during the early forenoon.

Freedom of action in the cattle track was hampered somewhat by inclement weather. Normal receipts added to cattle carried over from yesterday filled medium grade steer channels. About 500 head of western cattle were on offer and the balance of the run consisted largely of native steers. Quotations were held steady with Monday's declines.

Further declines were halted in the sheep sheds when a modest run arrived. Twelve markets had twice as many sheep as were offered last Tuesday.
